Nogales, Ariz., December 10.—Three thousand federal troops from Tepic, capital of the state of Nayarit, Mexico, have fallen into the hands of the rebels, according to unconfirmed advices received here today from Tepic.

The garrison at Tepic, in Nayarit, Mexico, divided yesterday and 200 soldiers rebelled and attempted to capture the post, according to advices received today. General Antonio Ortega, chief of military operations in Nayarit, who was in command of the garrison, was reported seriously wounded.

General Manuel Daigze, commanding officer under Carranza during the latter's regime, is reported to have led the uprising.

Brownsville, Texas, December 10.—Three thousand federal troops from Monterrey, under command of General Amaro, have captured Victoria, capital of Tamaulipas, and are in control of the southern part of that state, according to unofficial reports reaching Monterrey. Cesar Lopez de Lara, governor of Tamaulipas, an adherent of Adolfo de la Huerta, is reported a prisoner at Victoria.

The troops entrained at Monterrey Monday night and captured Victoria Sunday without firing a shot, reports here said. There "are been no reports of disturbances in Monterrey or any towns in Nuevo Leon and northern Tamaulipas.

TWO REBEL COLUMNS ADVANCE ON CAPITAL.

Vera Cruz, December 10.—(By the Associated Press.)—The column of revolutionists proceeding by way of the Inter-Oceanic railway for Mexico City is taking with it four batteries of 75 millimeter guns and four batteries of machine guns, in addition to ammunition for both categories. The column was able to increase its gun power from pieces obtained from the San Juan de Ulua castle and from the warships in the harbor here.

Another column of troops, to be under the personal command of General Guadalupe Sanchez, is being formed and will go toward the capital by way of the Mexican railway to aid the columns already advancing.

One-Armed President of Mexico in Interview—Decrees War to Death to Foes.

Declares Mexican People Will Water Flower of Freedom With Tears for Dead.

BY UNITED PRESS.

Mexico City, December 10.—(Delayed.)—From the immense colored tiled balcony of Chapultepec castle, frowning high above a sweeping, well-kept park nestling hundreds of feet below, General Alvaro Obregon, president of Mexico, his daughter, an interpreter and I watched the long lines of automobiles and pedestrians winding through the streets at our feet. It was Sunday.

"Not many signs of trouble, are there?" the president remarked. It would be hard to imagine, if one were deprived of the daily press, that there is anything untoward in Mexico. I had traveled to the castle along the magnificent Paseo de la Reforma. I had seen the president earlier in the day walking through the heart of the city, attended by his physician, chief of staff, and private secretary, and had made the appointment for the afternoon interview. Now we were sitting in a contemplative mood, gazing at the movements below.

Talks of Sunset on Mountains.
"I love this park," the president went on. "and the view of the distant hills. There is something very soothing to heated eyes about contemplation of those far off mountains, especially just now when their summits are bathed by the violet rays of the falling sun."

"I looked at him in amazement. Here was a man so unperturbed by a revolt aimed at his overthrow that he could serenely sit in the twilight and muse over sunsets. His daughter, with a flash of mischief, said with a fascinating accent:

"Papa is becoming quite a poet, isn't he? He had laid down his sword so long that now he forgets it is again strapped to his belt."

The general frowned as an old-time fire flashed from his keen eye. "Would to God I had never been compelled to take it up again," he said. "But, having taken it up, I shall wield it to good purpose. I shall not lay it down until the enemies of Mexico, for such I believe them to be, have been annihilated."

GENERAL ALVARO OBERGON

PAY COMMITTEE
IGNORES MAYOR
ON SALARY HIKES

Votes to Boost Policemen and Firemen $20 Per Month in Face of Warning of Veto.

Ignoring a warning, delivered personally by Mayor Walter A. Sims, that he will veto any program of salary increases which would make an increase in the city water rate necessary next year, the salary committee of council Monday afternoon forced through a schedule of salary increases for policemen and firemen substantially the same as the first one recommended by the committee the week before last, calling for $20 a month raise for practically all members in both departments and amounting in all to $147,000 a year in excess of the present pay roll, according to estimates by City Comptroller B. Graham West. The water rate raised Monday night that he would veto the schedule if it passed council.

The first schedule of raises was referred by council, at the mayor's request, back to the committee for adjustment and when the committee convened Monday afternoon Mayor Sims appeared before it and informed it that the present state of the city's finances would make it impossible for the city to increase police and fire salaries more than $10 a month next year without substantially increasing revenue through raising the water rate again from 80 cents to $1 per thousand gallons.

Opposes Raising Rate.
"I am unalterably opposed to raising the water rate except to meet an unavoidable emergency and I will veto any attempt to create an emergency which would make a raise necessary," the mayor told the committee. He explained that increases in interest charges on bonds voted during a previous administration and sold last year and other unavoidable increases in expenses would make it impossible to increase salary expenses more than $70,000, the amount $10 monthly raises would make, unless the water rate was increased.

In the face of this appeal, Alderman J. L. Carpenter and Councilman J. Allen Couch captured control of the salary committee and put through a $20-a-month raise schedule over tentative objections of Chairman C. J. Vaughan and Councilman J. L. Sims.

TAX REFORM FATE WILL BE DECIDED BEFORE WEEK END

If Favorable Action Has Not Been Taken by That Time, All Hope Is Gone, Say Legislative Heads.

Legislative leaders in both houses of the general assembly expressed emphatic opinions Monday that the week, the sixth of the extra session, either will see tax reform measures enacted or the entire program of remedial legislation fail.

With the Ellis statutory tax bill placed on the calendar for early action, under a motion to reconsider, and with the Lankford constitutional income tax measure again in the hands of conference committees, it is probable that both these bills will come up for vote on Wednesday or Thursday of this week at the latest and if agreement between the two houses is not reached at that time and an income tax bill of some kind adopted it is the consensus of opinion that, in so far as results are concerned, the special session will have failed.

Attendance Important.

The question may hinge on the attendance on the bills since the Lankford bill, being a constitutional amendment, requires 138 votes, or two-thirds of the membership, to pass the house, with a similar proportion in the senate. The Ellis bill requires 104, or a majority of the votes in the house.

It was pointed out Monday by leaders in both houses that this meant that every absentee member will vote in effect against the bills, whether he favors them or not. Thus, with only 137 members present, the absentees would have killed the Lankford bill.

The two boys charged with murder and Homer Jones, brother of William Jones, and the former's wife, all left here this afternoon in the company of Muscogee deputy sheriffs for Butler. They were carried to Butler on orders of Sheriff Beeland, of Taylor county.

COOLIDGE URGES
SOLONS TO HEED
BUDGET LIMITS

President Presents Departmental Estimates to Congress in Special Message.

REITERATES DEMAND FOR SLASH IN TAXES

Appropriations Covered in Program Total $3,298,080,444—Cut of Quarter of Billion.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.

Washington, December 10.—Drastic economy is the slogan laid down by President Coolidge in his special message transmitting the new budget recommendations to congress.

Appropriations asked for the fiscal year beginning next July are $3,298,080,444 below those of the current year.

"This was essential to a policy of strict and drastic economy," he explained. "That is the administration's undebatable policy. It has been adhered to unwaveringly in the past and we shall hew to the line in the future."

Only three executive departments escaped being slashed.

Coolidge is insisting upon these cuts so that the Mellon tax reduction program can be effected. Repeating the declaration in his message to congress, Coolidge is emphatically behind that plan and against the soldier bonus.

In a special message transmitting to congress the budget for the fiscal year of 1925 the president held the "soldier bonus" to be a block in the path of all tax relief and not a "proper obligation" to veterans.

"I question if there is any sound reason for such a measure," he said in his message.

The time has come, he said, to share the benefits of governmental economies, past and in prospect, with the people, by reducing the tax burden. Rigorous adherence by congress to budget estimates will permit immediate and continuing relief; enactment of extraordinary appropriations measures not contemplated in the budget will defeat it, Mr. Coolidge declared.

To Stick to Budget.
For his part, he will guarantee that the executive departments responsible to him will "hew to the line," he told congress.

The budget transmitted by Mr. Coolidge provided for government expenditures of $3,298,080,444 during the 1925 fiscal year, $266,957,644 less than during the current year, and the lowest yearly expenditure of the government since before the war.

A surplus of $395,681,634 in the government's financial operations for the next fiscal year was estimated, as compared with an estimated surplus of $329,639,424 this year and an actual surplus of $309,657,460 in the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1923.

These figures, Mr. Coolidge told congress, "certainly justify the view that we can stand a reduction in our ordinary receipts and still achieve a balanced budget."

The total receipts of the government during the next fiscal year were estimated at $3,693,762,078, as compared with $3,945,717,712 during the current year, a decrease of $252,000,000. These estimates are based on present taxes, and include a back tax on corporations.

DEMOCRATS FORCE
SENATE DEADLOCK
IN CUMMINS CASE

Senator Wheeler Precipitates Fight With Objection to Election of Cummins to Transportation Job.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, December 10.—Republican insurgents who favor sharp amendment of the transportation act brought about a deadlock today in the senate over the election of a chairman of the interstate commerce committee, which handles railroad legislation. Three ballots were taken without result and the senate adjourned until tomorrow when the voting will be resumed.

Senator Cummins, of Iowa, who is both chairman of the committee and president pro tem of the senate, told four votes short on the first and third ballots and three votes short on the second ballot of the necessary majority for reelection as chairman of the committee. Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, leader of the insurgents and ranking republican on the committee, received seven votes on each ballot, while Senator Smith, of South Carolina, ranking democrat on the committee, was given the solid support of the democrats.

Does Not Block Work.

While waged along much the same lines as that conducted by the republican insurgents in the house over the speakership, this fight does not wage such far-reaching results, as the senate can continue to function, although the chairman is not selected. Senator Cummins declared he would not bargain with the supporters of Senator La Follette, adding that he had no intention of giving up this post for some other. He said also that he could not conceive that there is any question to his right to the position of chairman.

Senator Cummins was advised some time ago by some of his friends that there was sentiment against his holding both the committee chairmanship and the office of president pro tem, but at that time he told republican leaders that he had nothing to surrender; that he held both of his offices at the pleasure of the senate and that it was for the membership to decide whether he should retain either or both.

No Personal Animosity.

Senator Norris, of Nebraska, a leader of the insurgents, issued a statement late in the day saying that the senators who voted against Senator Cummins were moved as a matter of principle and not by any general feelings.

"They don't feel," he said, "that the presiding officer of the senate who has the duties of a vice president to perform should at the same time be chairman of the interstate committee."

To Postoffice Inspector H. N. Graham, of New York city and formerly of Atlanta, Erwin is said to have declared that he contracted to join the Woodward gang while still an inmate of the Atlanta federal penitentiary.

LEON J. GUTHRIE
COMMITTS SUICIDE
IN ROOMING HOUSE

Had Attended to His Duties at United States Weather Office Until Late in Afternoon.

GUTHRIE AND WIFE
PARTED MONTHS AGO

Two Other Suicide Attempts Reported to Police During Day—Expect Victims to Recover.

Despondent over religious differences with his wife, from whom he had been estranged many months, Leon J. Guthrie, age 46, chief clerk to C. F. von Herrmann, Atlanta weather forecaster, fired a bullet from a .44 caliber revolver through his brain at his boarding house, 41 Crew street, shortly before 6 o'clock Monday night, dying instantly.

Mr. Guthrie left a note addressed to Miss Lila Barfield, proprietress of the Crew street boarding house, in which he briefly explained the cause of his motive in taking his own life. It follows:

Explains Suicide Act.

"Dear Miss Lila:
"This, I must say, is a shabby way in which to repay all your many kindnesses to me; but it cannot be helped."

"If the authorities want information—it is sufficient for them that my wife's adherence to the tenets of Christian Science estranged us and finally ruined my life—and hers. I have nothing left but this.

"Please telegraph my sister, Mrs. Laura C. Martin, 174 Marcus avenue, St. Louis, Mo., and turn over the enclosed M. W. A. receipt to her.

"Yours,

"LEON J. GUTHRIE.

"Please mail enclosed letters, without showing them to anyone. Inclosed check is my balance in the bank."

Letters Given Police.
The letters and the "M. W. A." receipt were turned over to police authorities by Miss Barfield, and no effort to investigate their contents was made, it was noted.

The action of Guthrie came as a complete surprise to Forecaster von Herrmann and his associates in the Atlanta weather bureau. Guthrie performed his duties throughout the day Monday, and left the office at 4 o'clock in apparently good spirits.

He went to his rooming house, and was seen by other occupants at various times for more than an hour. Then he took a car across the street for the purpose of having it pressed.

Miss Barfield stated that he returned to the house from the pressing shop, retired to his room, and fired the death-dealing shot within a few minutes.

When the report of a revolver was heard Edward Crawford, negro operator of the pressing shop across the street, ran to the Barfield residence, and with his revolver in hand entered Guthrie's room.

The weather bureau assistant was lying in a pool of blood. The explanatory note was found on a table in his room.

Inquest for Tuesday.
A call was sent to police headquarters, and Call Officers Bullard and Goode were sent to the scene. The body was turned over to H. M. Patterson.

President and Secretary of Agriculture Drift Apart on Problem Presented by Farm Plight.

HOWARD M. GORE SLATED FOR POST

Chief Executive Has Twice Flouted Cabinet Member—Message to Congress Latest Blow.

Washington, December 10.—A rift is growing between President Coolidge and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, which may lead to the latter's resignation, unless reconciliation is applied promptly.

The trouble arises from the fact that Coolidge and Wallace view the troubles of the farmer through different eyes. Coolidge, trained in the conservative, New England school of economics, believes the farmer must help himself, and that the government must not tinker with economic expedients.

Wallace, reared on Iowa soil, where the well-being of the farmer is regarded as a public, rather than a private matter, insists the government should go to the rescue of the farmer, just as it has helped the railroads and the merchant marine.

Starting with this fundamental difference of viewpoint, the two men have found themselves differing on many points.

Footing Not Secure.

There are circumstances which indicate that Wallace has not been taken into Coolidge's confidence to the degree to which a cabinet member is entitled.

For instance, last summer, when the question of farm relief was being agitated so actively, Coolidge, without consulting Wallace, dispatched Eugene Meyer, and former Congressman Frank W. Mondell, both of the war finance corporation, on a tour through the west for the purpose of formulating an administration program on agriculture. Wallace was not apprised of this enterprise until it was publicly announced at the white house.

Spoke of It as "Mistake."

He was opposed to placing the question of relief measures in the hands of a special committee.

Would Keep Secret
Patents Detrimental To National Defense

Washington, December 10.—President Coolidge today asked congress for authority to withhold from publication and place in a secret file any patent which in his opinion would be detrimental to national defense.

He also recommended that a permanent inter-departmental patents board be established to recommend regulation of inventions and patents evolved by government employees.

News Outside the Door

Blackie, a southern fox squirrel, escaped from Bronx park, lives in a hollow tree in Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and is looked upon with awe by children, and older folks there, who regard him as some sort of a freak gray squirrel. From Bronx park a parkway extends along the river to Mt. Vernon, and perhaps Blackie, tired of the zoo, thought he was going back south when he went to Mt. Vernon.

Southern fox squirrels, from Virginia to the gulf and Louisiana have a black cap, blackish brown shawl, are lighter brown underneath with black and white ears and nose. Sometimes they are shiny black all over with white nose and ears, and that is how Blackie of Mt. Vernon dresses. He looks down on the gray squirrels of the neighborhood. It is supposed he is waiting for his wife to escape, so they can start south together.

The northern fox squirrel resembles his larger cousin, except for white nose and ears, wears russet brown, and in Michigan, Iowa, and Arkansas varies in color.

There is a time for everything. A wise merchant doesn't stop a family when they are on the way to an entertainment in order to talk business.

The weather in Atlanta is beautiful most of the time, and late afternoons and nights the people are not trading, nor are they thinking about trading. They are out having a pleasant time.

The Constitution is delivered every morning before six o'clock into 30,162 Atlanta homes. None of these folks are watching circus parades, nor are they thinking about any sort of entertainment.

MUSSOLINI SEEKS CONFIDENCE VOTE

Rome, December 10.—To show the world that Italy is ruled by the will of the majority of the Italian people and to obtain a parliament which coincides with the wishes of the electorate, Premier Mussolini, with the consent of the cabinet, obtained today the signature of the king to a decree dissolving the present session of the chamber—an act which inevitably leads to dissolution and new elections.

The decree signed by King Victor Emmanuel closes the present session of parliament but before final dissolution of the chamber the issuance of another royal order will be necessary. Dissolution will probably take place the early part of January, and in that event, elections will be held in April. The premier's bold decisive step ends voluntarily his own dictatorship and reestablishes the government along the usual constitutional lines. There is not the slightest doubt that Mussolini had the present chamber well under control. He had only to ask for full powers for another year, and these would have been granted by an overwhelming majority. As little or no opposition was manifested against him, his retention of power could have been prolonged until the present chamber died a natural death in 1926, when by the constitution another election would take place automatically.

But the premier chose this time to prove that his rule was not derived from the lavish use of the big stick, or repression, but was based upon acceptance of his program by the Italian people as a whole. In addition, it was the premier's desire since elections were recently held in England and will soon be held in France, not to have it believed abroad that he was unwilling to refer the policy of his government to the vote of the people. Mussolini has already announced himself as not being in favor of the existing double chamber; he wished the parliament to be made up of representatives who would speak for the interests and desires of the country. His opponents in the chamber are almost negligible, consisting of a few followers of former Premier Nitti, socialists and communists, and Mafia in his own party are considered most favorable.

Genuine Winter Weather Coming, Says Forecaster

Raincoats and umbrellas Tuesday with a sudden switch to heavy overcoats Wednesday are the styles for the immediate future, predicted by C. F. von Herrmann, local weather forecaster.

Following the rain which began Monday afternoon, there will be a precipitous drop in the temperature, and the weather will be the coldest of the winter. In all probability, he added, it will remain cold for at least 48 hours, although there is no likelihood of snow. There was little doubt in Mr. von Herrmann's mind Monday that the temperature during the coming spell would be far lower than it has been at any time this winter.

"We haven't had a great deal of cold weather this season so far," he said. "The lowest the mercury has registered to date was on November 10, when it hovered at 35 below, but then as on the one or two other occasions during the fall when cold was hinted, warm winds and heavy rain threatened cold away. This time, however, we are in for it, and Atlanta has better make up their minds to a couple of days at least of genuine winter."

TAX REFORM FATE BEFORE WEEK END

bill as effectively as though they had actually voted against it.

Leaders of the every member be present on Wednesday and Thursday of this week when final action on the bill will be taken. The bill is expected to be passed by the house only fair to the supporters of the bill to give them a sufficient attendance for a reasonable chance of passage.

Bill Is Recommended.

The senate Monday voted to recommend the Lankford bill to the conference committee, following its action last Friday in rejecting the committee report. The same committee was named to again confer with the house committee in another effort to reach agreement and the house notified of this action.

In the house, owing to the absence of Fleming, of Hancock, and Burt of Dougherty, the speaker was authorized to name Knight, of Berrien, and McClure, of Walker, as substitute members of the conference committee, to act with Culpepper, of Fayette, the third member.

During the afternoon session the house voted to table the bill by Representative Groves making tax collectors ex-officio judges for enforcement of special tax laws.

It also defeated a similar bill by Representative Aubrey, of Bartow, and recommissioned the senate resolution and all substitutes dealing with the free text book question, to the committee on education.

Plan Substitute.

At a meeting of this committee, held immediately after adjournment, a subcommittee of five was appointed to meet with Representative McCrory, of Shelby, author of the house substitute, and State Superintendent of Schools N. H. Ballard, for the purpose of drafting a substitute measure for all bills on the subject.

This subcommittee, it is understood, will endeavor to draft a bill which will enable the state book commission to contract for text books for school children of the state on an equal footing with other states, and at the same time provide a clause permitting school districts to provide free text books, either in whole or in part. It also will endeavor to eliminate several features of bills which have aroused opposition in the house during debate last week.

Although the Ellis statutory income tax bill was heard at the head of the calendar, it is probable that the general tax act will be the first bill to be considered by the house when it convenes Tuesday morning. Just before adjournment Monday afternoon Chairman Ennis, of the ways and means committee, announced that the bill, with the numerous amendments added by the senate, will be ready for consideration. Under the rules the general tax act has right of way over all other bills.

Tobacco Tax Change.

Following publication in The Constitution of Sunday of an interview with Comptroller General William A. Wright, in which he was quoted as saying that the Miller cigar and cigarette tax law was unenforceable because of failure to provide revenue for expenses of collection and enforcement, Representative Miller, of Dodge county, author of the original measure, introduced a new bill to amend the law so as to provide these necessary funds.

The new measure provides that cost of printing, necessary expenses of stamps and other expenses of collections may be defrayed out of receipts from the tax, subject to approval of the governor and that the comptroller general shall furnish a detailed statement of these expenditures in his annual report on receipts under the law.

General Wright, Monday denied rumors that he had said he would make no effort to collect the law. His only criticism, he said, was in his failure to provide for collection of the tax, which is exactly as he was quoted in The Sunday Constitution. He further stated that the law as a whole has his hearty approval and that he would make every effort to enforce it universally, a result which he believes not impossible if the suggested amendment is adopted.

Reconsideration Voted.

Reconsideration of disputed amendments to the Lankford income tax bill was voted by the senate Monday morning upon motion of Senator J. H. Adams, of the forty-seventh district.

Immediately following the senate's action to reconsider the measure President Carswell called the third senate conference committee, composed of Senators Duke, Parker and Morgan, together with the third senate committee, to the members urging careful reconsideration. The senate committee then went into executive conference with the house committee consisting of Representatives Knight, of Berrien; McClure, of Walker, and Culpepper, of Fayette. At a late hour in the afternoon the two committees were still deliberating on the measure.

As a result of the senate's action prospects for passage of an income tax were decidedly strengthened, according to house and senate leaders, who regard the step as indicating a reversal of sentiment for the Lankford bill. It is expected that the latest conference will result in compromises that will be acceptable to both houses.

Phillips Leads Fight.

Senator John R. Phillips, of the eighteenth district, led the fight for reconsideration of the measure in the upper house. He stressed the importance of laying aside all other bills and action one way or the other was finally taken on the Lankford measure.

At the regular session of the upper house the Ennis bill, providing for creation of a department for collection of delinquent taxes, was again taken up for consideration. The house rejected an amendment voted by the senate last week to this bill.

4 INVESTIGATIONS OF WRECK STARTED

Forsyth, N. Y., December 10.—Four investigations were launched today into the wreck of the New York Central Twentieth Century Limited, near here yesterday, when nine persons were killed and a number of passengers injured, five seriously.

"COLLEGE KID" BELIEVED CAUGHT

As a result of negotiations which occurred during his two-year term, Erwin went to work upon his release from the pen as a "steerer" for Woodward's organization, his compensation being ten per cent of the proceeds of each transaction, the inspector said.

Erwin admitted his identity to his captors, it is stated, and has waived requisition.

The prisoner is under federal indictment here for misuse of the mails in connection with the alleged swindling of H. Reihardt, of West Lafayette, Ohio, out of $25,000; and C. W. Hatcher, of Hartford, Conn., out of $24,000; and of others, the amounts varying.

Erwin is a college graduate and is said to have been the most perfect "steerer" in the confidence group which operated here for many months.

His two-year penitentiary sentence was for impersonating a United States officer in an alleged blackmail attempt on a wealthy easterner.

YOUNG CLOUDBURST SWEEPS HOUSTON

Houston, Texas, December 10.—Street car and automobile traffic was halted and thousands of dollars in damage was done by a miniature cloudburst which struck Houston Monday.

A few moments after the downpour began, streets became torrents of swirling water, buckling wooden block streets.

The weather bureau announced 3.5 inches of water fell in an hour's time. The heaviest damage was reported to have been done by the basement of a building which was rising steadily here are expected to reach flood stage within twenty-four hours.

Acting on Dream, Cops Find Bodies Of Man and Girl

Spring Lake, Mich., December 10.—The dream twice repeated of George Snyder, local contractor, led late yesterday to the discovery of the bodies of Harry B. Proctor, 38, a Muskegon real estate dealer, and 14-year-old Edna Fullager buried in the mud of Grand river, three blocks from the Proctor home here. The man and girl had been missing since October 30. Impressed by his dream, Snyder communicated with officials and made a sketch of the place where the automobile in which the two were last seen might be found. Thirty minutes after officers began to drag the river the car was found and the bodies of the two for whom a nation-wide search had been made were recovered shortly afterward.

Proctor, according to reports to officials, called at the Fullager home the night of October 30. He had sold a home to Mrs. Fullager. He said he had been drinking and was afraid to drive his car and the Fullager girl finally consented to drive him home. That was the last seen of them. Later a warrant charging abduction was obtained by Mrs. Fullager against Proctor.

Physicians attending the five persons who were seriously hurt, and who were taken to a hospital at Erie, Pa., said that there was no change in their condition. The bodies of the victims also were taken to Erie.

The bodies were being held in Erie today and it is said they probably will not be sent to their respective homes until after the inquest, set by Coroner B. M. Blood, of Chautauque county, New York, for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. The inquest will be conducted in Erie, the coroner said, as the bodies were taken to that city and the Erie division headquarters of the New York Central are located there.

The railroad's inquiry launched shortly after an section of the limited ploughed into the rear end of another section, which had stopped to investigate the wrecking of an automobile on a grade above the crossing. The investigation of the company from the New York and Cleveland offices.

The only statement issued by an official of the company came from E. V. Brown, superintendent of the Erie division. He said "the blame for the accident will not be definitely placed until the investigation on Tuesday. The engineer of the third section states that the signals were against him but for some reason that he can't explain, he failed to stop his train in time to avoid the accident. He has delivered the goods for 40 years, the best service we could give for. That is all I have to say at present."

The engineer in question is Charles Patterson, of Buffalo. His train, the third section of the limited, struck the first section near the crossing. The first section, delayed by engine trouble, was running behind the second section which wrecked the automobile.

BALDWIN TO KEEP JOB AS PREMIER

London, December 10.—According to the most trustworthy reports available tonight, Premier Baldwin has yielded to the wishes of his party and has agreed to carry on and meet parliament on its reassembling January 8. It is also asserted that the liberal leaders have been sounded and it is understood that no factious opposition would be offered to the government in the house so long as controversial business is avoided.

Mr. Lloyd George arrived in London tonight and consulted with Mr. Asquith. Both are remaining in London for the time being.

With a highly delicate and difficult situation abroad and an equally difficult situation at home, including the questions of how to balance the coming budget and deal with the unemployment problem and also the discontent of the farmer in—as the government's project subsidizing agriculture land falls to the ground with the defeat of Mr. Baldwin's protectionist proposals—no government formed by any of the three parties could hope to reap any credit under existing conditions.

HOW TO GET RID OF CATARRH

A Simple, Safe, Inexpensive Method that Clears Out the Head, Nose and Throat.

There is no disease more offensive or disagreeable, or no disease that will lead to as much serious trouble as catarrh. You can now get rid of it by a simple, safe, pleasant home remedy discovered by Dr. Blosser, a catarrh specialist.

Dr. Blosser's Remedy is composed of medicinal herbs, flowers and berries, which you smoke in a dainty pipe or cigarette. The smoke-vapor is inhaled into all the air passages of the head, nose, throat and lungs and carries medicine where sprays, douches and salves cannot possibly reach. Its effect is soothing and healing and is entirely harmless. It contains no cubes or tobacco, and may be used by women and children, as well as men.

If you suffer from catarrh, asthma, catarrhal deafness or are subject to frequent colds, get from any drug store a convenient pocket size package of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes and prove for yourself their pleasant, beneficial effect—(adv.)

Alleged Slayers Of Georgia Officer Sought by Mob

Valdosta, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—Warren Waters, alleged murderer of Chief T. J. Kersey of Hazlehurst, Ga., and Bob Johnson, alleged accomplice, were captured eight miles north of Hazlehurst when traced down by bloodhounds Monday.

Waters was removed from Mount Vernon jail tonight, when Sheriff Burch was warned that an attempt would be made to storm the jail. The present whereabouts of Waters is unknown, but it is believed he was taken to Savannah. Johnson is lodged in the Douglas jail.

According to an alleged statement by Waters, he shot the chief first and after he fell to the ground, Johnson fired the second shot.

They hid in a deserted house in Hazlehurst Sunday night and started from there this Monday morning when they were traced down by the bloodhounds and captured.

A mob of several hundred persons was reported assembling at Swainsboro, the native city of the dead chief. The body was taken to Swainsboro today for burial.

Waters Sunday when the sheriff went to his home to arrest him for violating a parole.

NOLEN IS CAUGHT IN NEW ORLEANS

New Orleans, December 10.—Diggs Nolen, federal prisoner who escaped from officers last week in Memphis, was arrested here today.

Detectives Jacobs and Dominguez, who made the arrest, said they spotted Nolen on Canal street.

"My name is Applegate, and I'm hunting at the moment," they said he told them when they took him into custody.

"I'll never forget you," Jacobs replied. "I arrested you eight years ago at the L. & N. station when you tried to shoot me."

Jacobs probably is alive today because a cartridge in the pistol which Nolen jammed into his side on that occasion proved to be defective when pulled the trigger. Nolen attended a medical school here at one time and eight years ago was dismissed because of a prank in which he participated.

On the way to police headquarters he admitted his identity.

Nolen, who was serving a term in the Atlanta penitentiary was taken to Memphis by a guard to testify in federal court. The guard and Nolen attended a theater one night last week and Nolen managed to slip away. Since then federal officers have been searching the entire south for him.

LENROOT INTRODUCES WORLD COURT MEASURE

Washington, December 10.—A resolution, pending for entrance of the United States into the world court after it had been divorced completely from the league of nations was introduced in the senate today by Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin.

The resolution provides that "the senate advises and consents" to the admission on the part of the United States "to the protocol of December 16, 1920, accepting the state of the permanent court of international justice but not the clause for compulsory jurisdiction."

Entrance of the United States would be conditional also upon the inclusion in the instrument of adhesion of specific reservations that no "legal relationship" to the league was evolved, or no obligations under the covenant of the league or under the Versailles treaty assumed by the United States.

Three Amendments.

Three proposals for constitutional amendments were included in the second wave of bills and resolutions which broke today in both senate and house.

The "equal rights amendment," sponsored by the woman's party, was introduced by Senator Curtis, republican, Kansas; an amendment terminating the terms of president and vice president on "the third Monday in January" and of senators and representatives "on the first Monday in January" of the year in which they would normally end was offered by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, and the amendment authorizing the president, "a majority of the senators voting concurring," to conclude treaties, was introduced by Senator Owen, democrat, Oklahoma.

Other point resolutions in the day's work included the maiden proposal of Senator Magnus Johnson, farmer-labor, Minnesota, directing the president to call an international convention to negotiate a general arbitration treaty, and another by Senator King, democrat, Utah, to provide a world conference on disarmament.

GEORGIA SENATORS GET ASSIGNMENTS

Washington, December 10.—(Special.)—Senator George, of Georgia, has been assigned to the committee on privileges and elections, which will take up the charges which have been brought against Senator Mayfield of Texas.

The charges of excessive expenditures brought against the Texas senator will occupy the chief part of the investigation to be made to the committee, it was learned Monday, and the plan issue will be played down. Under the Texas election law, a candidate is allowed to spend $10,000 in his race for the nomination. It is charged that Mayfield spent over $100,000. It is also charged that the plan exerted a strong influence on his election.

The democrats are in a corner on the Mayfield case. Because of the vigorous part they took in the attempt to oust Newberry, it will be hard for them not to stand with republicans in the ousting of Mayfield, as the charges are similar. It is being generally predicted that the capital that Senator Mayfield will be ousted because of this section.

Senator George has also been assigned to the military affairs, the civil service and the postoffices and post roads committees.

In the new senate committee assignments Senator Harris is added to the manufactures committee, and retains his membership on appropriations, immigration and territories and insular possessions. Because of the change of Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, from appropriations to foreign relations committee, Senator Harris is now the second ranking democrat on the appropriations committee, being next to Senator Overman, of North Carolina.

MERCER PLANNING BIG EXPANSION

Macon, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—Recommendations for a program of expansion at Mercer university and a review of the condition of the university were made today by Dr. Rufus W. Weaver, president, at the annual meeting of the board of trustees. The report will be read tomorrow at the Georgia Baptist convention.

Besides approving Dr. Weaver's report, the trustees also sanctioned the development of local alumni associations, commended the work of J. E. Williams, secretary of the Mercer University Alumni association, and approved the program of Coach Stanley Robinson in an effort to keep the athletics of the university clean.

The report shows that Mercer's assets for the year ending June 30, 1918, were $738,311.25; that the expenditures for that year were $91,433.83, while the income was $61,367.86, a loss of $10,065.97. The assets for June 30, 1923, were $1,571,344.28. To June 30, 1922, were $1,222,223, was $290,333.78, an increase of nearly $200,000 over the year 1917-18.

GOVERNOR AND PARTY WILL HUNT ON ISLAND

Brunswick, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—A large party of prominent Georgians, headed by Governor Clifford Walker, will arrive in Brunswick today for the purpose of hunting on an island, where they will spend several days on a hunting trip.

In the party, besides the governor, will be a number of statehouse officers, members of the house and senate and others. The party will be joined in Brunswick by three or four local citizens and in all about fifteen will go to the island on the trip.

An omnivore, which is inventor claims will ascend, descend or move in any direction, or remain stationary in the air, is to compete in the British helicopter contest.

PI KAPPA ALPHA AT MERCER GIVEN NATIONAL CHARTER

Macon, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—Granting of a charter by the Pi Kappa Alpha national fraternity to the Alpha Nu local of Mercer university has just been announced here. Initiation of the local and the installation of the Mercer chapter will probably take place before the Christmas holidays.

The Alpha Nu local was organized at Mercer in September, 1922. In June of the same year the board of trustees granted a charter which permitted the organization of a local chapter with the right of petitioning a national fraternity for a charter.

Charter members of the Alpha Nu local are C. H. Beryman, Royston; J. R. Bethune, Alma; August Burghard, Macon; M. C. Burghard, Macon; W. L. Granade, Statesboro; J. S. Hard, Climax; Claude Joiner, Jr., Tonnelle; J. A. Ruffin, Barnesville; W. J. Shiver, Quitman; R. D. Smith, Milledgeville; R. E. Walker, Carrollton; M. K. Wallace, Douglas; H. A. Wells, Richmond; C. F. Whitaker, Macon, and L. L. Lovett, Wrightsville.

Pledges of the new fraternity are J. C. Chapman, Milledgeville; Milo B. Medlock, Macon; T. H. Smith, Milledgeville; F. G. Beryman, Royston; W. C. Dowling, Jesup, and Wilburn Dicks, Macon.

There are 59 active chapters of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity in the United States, three of which are in Georgia, being at Emory, Dalton and Tech. With the installation of a chapter at Mercer of the Pi Kappa Alpha, there will be nine national Greek letter fraternities on the campus.

NEGRO HELD IN NORTH IN GEORGIA MURDER

New Brunswick, N. J., December 10.—Silas Parmore, a negro, today was being held here pending the arrival of authorities from Iron City, Ga., where he is wanted on a charge of murdering Sheriff Jeff Williams in a running fight last March.

Three Are Held In Killing Probe At Hazlehurst

Hazlehurst, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—Warren Waters, who shot and killed Chief of Police Kersey here last night, was captured today by a posse near the Altamaha river at Mat Burkett's home. At the October term of the superior court Waters was convicted of handling whisky, Chief Kersey being the one who caught him. He was fined and sentenced to serve 12 months on probation.

Waters is said to have been drunk yesterday and Kersey went to his home to arrest him as he was violating his probation.

As the chief entered the yard, Waters called to him not to enter saying that he would kill him. Kersey kept advancing and Waters shot him at close range with a shotgun loaded with buckshot. After Kersey's head was almost severed from his body, Waters is alleged to have reloaded his gun and placed it close to the face of Kersey and fired again. Bob Johnson and H. C. Pope were with Waters at the time of the killing.

At the coroner's inquest last night Waters, Johnson and Pope were ordered arrested and charged with murder, the last two being arrested at once. Waters escaped but was captured by the posse this morning. He was carried to Mt. Vernon and left for safe keeping as feeling here is running high.

T. J. Kersey, the dead marshal, was from Swainsboro, Ga., and was about 46 years old. He is survived by a wife and several sisters. Interment will be at Swainsboro tomorrow at 2 o'clock, the mayor and aldermen, city clerk and city attorney will attend the funeral and act as pallbearers.

Waters is about 50 years old and has a wife. The other two defendants have no families. They are in jail at Jesup.

H. G. WELLS DEFEATED AS LABOR CANDIDATE

London, December 10.—H. G. Wells, the novelist, was again defeated for a seat in parliament at last Thursday's election. Running as the labor candidate for the London university, he received 1,420 votes against 4,037 for Sir Sydney R. Wells, conservative, and 2,592 for Professor Pollard, liberal.

ADJUTANT GENERAL CONFERS WITH HARRIS

Washington, December 10.—(Special.)—Adjutant General Charles H. Cox, of Georgia, was in Washington Monday and conferred with Senator Harris on several official matters pending before the war department.

SMITH'S COLD SALVE

The External Treatment for Croup, Colds, Coughs

The experience of the last five years in the treatment of colds, croup, inflammation in the lungs, congestion in the lungs, wheezing in the lungs, chest pains, tight feeling in the chest and dry, painful coughs have proven conclusively that external treatment is the most efficacious.

The application of appropriate drugs compounded into a penetrating and healing salve will give more prompt and satisfactory results than anything thus far discovered to be taken internally. Smith's Cold Salve contains these penetrating properties in a very high degree. A rubbing application to the chest and throat gives immediate relief. Price 25c.

MRS. SCHUYLER FACES CUTTING TRIAL TODAY

Decatur, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—Trial of Mrs. Helen Schuyler, 23, in connection with the cutting of Mrs. Bessie Jackson in a knife battle, is scheduled to come up in DeKalb county superior court Tuesday morning, it was announced Monday. Mrs. Schuyler is alleged to have cut Mrs. Jackson so seriously that the latter was taken to a hospital, where it was feared for a time that the wounds might prove fatal. Both women live on Whiteford street here.

SEVERAL CANDIDATES SEEK DALTON PLACES

Dalton, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—The Dalton municipal election which will be held Wednesday has aroused considerable interest. The registration books just closed indicate that there will be the largest vote ever polled in Dalton. Polling places will be open in the four wards of the city. The following well-known citizens have announced: For mayor, Dr. J. G. McAfee, incumbent; Dr. W. E. Wood, who has served as mayor, and in other public positions. For chief of police, Tom Crow.

Hooker Bryant and Hill Anderson. All three of these aspirants have served on the police force and the outcome of this race has aroused considerable interest.

For recorder, Judge John W. Ray, incumbent, and Rev. T. A. McEntyre. Alderman, third ward, C. L. King, incumbent, and Richard M. Hill. Russell H. McFarland is running without opposition for alderman in the first ward. McFarland headed his early announcement with the slogan of "You tell 'em," which rather seemed to intimidate opposition.

MANY STILLS SEIZED IN SAVANNAH AREA

Savannah, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—During the past month, 72 stills have been destroyed by officers working under T. J. Day, and during the same period 50,182 gallons of mash were destroyed, according to the report filed today. Besides these, 59 stills not included in the first number, and 43 stills were destroyed; 340 gallons of whiskey and many gallons of wine were seized. Over 100 people were arrested and property valued at $8,594 seized, besides two automobiles valued at $350. Officer Day stated that during a large portion of the month most of the enforcement officers were kept from full activity by having to appear in federal court as witnesses.

MAN WHO ESCAPED FROM HALL COUNTY CAMP REARRESTED

Postoffice inspectors here were advised Monday night that Tolliver Curtis, who was convicted in Bibb county last June of the robbery of the postoffice and store at Dry Branch, Ga., has been arrested in Camden, N. J., by Chief Detective Schreger. Curtis escaped from a convict camp in Hall county, where he was serving a sentence, it is said.

Goods valued at $1,200, $700 worth of which were recovered at Macon, were taken from the establishment. It is believed that an officer will be sent from Hall county to bring back the prisoner.

Postal officials also were advised Monday night that Albert C. Frause, substitute railway postal clerk on duty here between Savannah and Waycross, had been taken into custody at Savannah by Postoffice Inspectors Berry and Ellis, following alleged theft of a test letter. The money, "planted" in the letter, was recovered and a full confession obtained, it was stated.

Frause had been in service as a clerk between Charleston and Jacksonville and had been sent to the Savannah and Waycross line as a relief clerk.

Postal officials issued a warning Monday night for the public to be on the lookout for spurious money orders, following theft of four money order blanks in the robbery of the postoffice at Dyer, Ga., last Friday night. The stolen orders were numbered from 50,996 to 50,999, inclusive, postal officials said.

TRIAL OF ARSON CASE IS POSTPONED AGAIN

Trial of Mrs. Oka Smith and A. Hendricks, charged with arson following a fire in the former's rooms in the Knight apartments on North avenue Monday, was indefinitely postponed. Delay was due to the fact that Attorney R. E. A. Hamby, representing the defendants, is a member of the state senate and is busy in the extra session.

Thiesen Is Named Alumni Secretary Of Georgia Tech

R. Jack Thiesen, a graduate of the class of 1910, has been named secretary of the Georgia Tech Alumni association to succeed George Griffin. His work will be of a larger scope than that attempted by former secretaries in that he will devote his entire time to the association, while those in the past have only given a part of their time.

In addition to these duties Mr. Thiesen will form an employment bureau for graduates and will supervise securing endowments for the school. He gave up a position with one of the largest corporations in the country to come back to Tech, knowing that in the position of alumni secretary he would be able to do more for the school than in any other capacity.

Lot of Fancy Beef Brought to Atlanta From Kansas Show

Morris & Co. has just unloaded a lot of fancy show beef bought at the international live stock show held in Kansas City two weeks ago. The entire lot of loins and ribs out of these cattle has been purchased by the Ansley hotel. This beef was bred and fed for this show and is as fancy as beef can be grown, according to F. O. Miller, Atlanta branch manager of Morris.

Negros Planning To Return South Stayed by Threat

Chicago, December 10.—Reports of intimidation of 300 negro families which were prepared to return to the south on a special Illinois Central train, were disclaimed today by railroad company officials, after the number actually returning had dwindled to a mere handful.

Illinois Central officials had a special train ready to transport a large group of negro families but when train time came, so few showed up the special train was canceled and a special car added to a regular train. Rumors of threats of violence said to have been made against the negroes contemplating emigration from this section have come to their knowledge only by hearsay, the Illinois officials said. They expressed the opinion that the large influx of negro workers to the north has resulted in a permanent change with little likelihood of a general return.

The company made arrangements for handling a large number of emigrating negroes from Chicago. The passenger agent at Memphis, Tenn., was in charge of arrangements for special transportation facilities to handle the group.

Just why the negroes whom they expected to fill the cars failed to show up at train time, they were at a loss to explain.

A labor agent from Clarksdale, Miss., said to represent cotton interests, was reported to have made arrangements with the railroad for carrying the negroes back south. He was credited with the statement that most of the negroes were willing to return and that he was at a loss to understand what frightened them to keep them from going.

RELEASED ON BOND, HE KILLS HIS WIFE

Reidsville, N. C., December 10.—Auster Carter, charged with killing his wife and wounding his brother-in-law, John Price, and the latter's wife, today was taken to the Rockingham county jail at Wentworth to await preliminary hearing. He was captured at Stokes Land, Va., last night.

John Price is believed to be fatally wounded.

Carter, according to the story told by members of the family, had had trouble with his wife and she had left him. He went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Moore, parents of his wife, yesterday afternoon. There was some trouble and Carter was arrested. He was released on bond and last night returned and shot his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Price. It is alleged that he also snatched his gun twice at Mrs. Moore.

The Carters have five children. Mrs. Carter, it is said, had twice before left her husband.

Date for the preliminary hearing, it was said, depends largely on the conditions of Mr. Price.

COOLIDGE ASKS SOLONS TO HEED BUDGET LIMITS

Outstanding among the estimates for appropriation for the fiscal year 1925 was the item for interest on the public debt, amounting to $800,000,000. Second only to this was the estimate for the veterans' bureau of $340,000,000.

Next in size were the appropriations for the war and interior departments, respectively $338,441,000 and $299,312,000. The navy estimate stood fifth at $278,400,000.

With the exception of the postoffice, commerce and justice departments which obtained increases, estimates submitted for the executive departments and independent offices were slashed far below appropriations provided them for the current fiscal year. The veterans bureau suffered the greatest cut, its estimate being placed more than $80,000,000 below its current appropriation.

Appropriations Asked

The principal appropriations asked, and notations of the approximate increase or decrease from appropriations provided for the current fiscal year follow:

Legislative establishment, $13,753,836; decrease, $700,000.

Department of agriculture, $69,530,375; decrease, $15,000,000.

Department of commerce, $24,048,025; increase, $3,000,000.

Department of the interior, $299,312,000; decrease, $28,000,000.

Department of labor, $6,702,565; decrease, $800,000.

Navy department, $278,400,000; decrease, $20,000,000.

State department, $24,048,025; decrease, $14,988,446; decrease, $9,000,000.

Treasury department, $148,988,005; decrease, $3,000,000.

War department, $338,441,000; decrease, $13,000,000.

Veterans' bureau, $340,000,000; decrease, $80,000,000.

Shipping board, $30,344,000; decrease, $2,000,000.

Public debt retirement, $310,000,000; decrease, $13,000,000.

Postoffice department, payable out of postal receipts and not by appropriation, $618,693,133; increase $28,000,000.

To Ask Special Fund

Mr. Coolidge told congress in his message that, in addition to these appropriations, he would shortly ask it to provide an additional $20,000,000 with which to purchase more equipment for the coast guard to enable it to cope more adequately with rum runners. If granted, he will later ask $6,000,000 more for the same purpose.

While dwelling on this subject, Mr. Coolidge called particular attention to congress to the increase of $1,900,000 in 1925 estimates for prohibition enforcement, indicating his desire that the money be provided.

The estimates for the war and navy departments provide for the continuation of the present personnel of the service, no money being provided for the increases in man power sought by Secretaries Weeks and Denby.

The British government, Mr. Coolidge said in his message, under the terms of a debt agreement with this country, will pay $160,000,000 into the treasury next year, probably in the form of a loan.

Under the law these will be retired.

"The American people have given a truly magnificent demonstration of patriotism during the year in which they have borne this burden," Mr. Coolidge said, in arguing for a tax reduction.

He Felt Nearly Half

"In less than seven years, to put the matter very briefly, we have spent $40,000,000,000 and we have paid $40,000,000,000 of it."

Mr. Coolidge said, in arguing for a tax reduction.

Would Remove Wire Tax

"I also recommend repeal of the tax on telegrams, telephone, and leased wires, and of the tax on admissions, and revision of the miscellaneous taxes which are a source of inconvenience to tax payers and difficult to collect."

On the other hand, amendments

which would cause some increase of revenue should also be made to existing income tax laws relative to deductions of capital losses; deductions from gross income for interest paid and non-business losses sustained; where income from tax-exempt securities is involved; and the manner of taxing community incomes. These changes would reduce taxes by more than $300,000,000, which is safely within the probable surplus.

"It would not take much, however, to exhaust this margin, and any program of new expenditures on a large scale would make tax reduction impossible for years to come."

"I know of nothing which will give the people of this nation greater assurance that we are unalterably committed to a campaign of economy in public expenditure than a reduction of our present taxation."

The president then sounded the death-knell of the soldiers' bonus, unless congress should desire and would be able to pass one over the president's veto.

Against Bonus for Sound Vets.

"In stating that a reduction in taxation carries with it an obligation not to embark upon an extraordinary expenditure program, I am not unmindful of the demand for adjusted compensation for soldiers of the world war, which would include among its beneficiaries the able-bodied of our veterans as well as the disabled," Mr. Coolidge said.

"I question if there is any sound reason for such a measure," he continued.

"The country is prosperous, and remunerative employment is available for the able-bodied veterans as well as for other citizens. For the disabled veterans of the war and the dependents of those who fell the country cannot do too much."

"It has already spent nearly two billion dollars and is now spending nearly half a billion dollars yearly for their benefit. That obligation it must, and will, continue to fulfill in the fullest measure."

"But the fit and able-bodied veterans are offered the opportunities open to every other citizen. The government has no money to distribute to any class of its citizens that it does not take from the pockets of the people, and the payment of a bonus to millions of former soldiers could only be accomplished at a cost to the whole community, including the veterans themselves, far outweighing the benefits to be conferred."

HOW U. S. DOLLARS

WILL COME AND GO.

Washington, December 10.—(By Associated Press.)—Here's how the government's dollars will come and go in the fiscal year of 1925 as estimated by the experts of the bureau of the budget.

Each average dollar of the $3,693,

762,073 estimated receipts, is expected, will come from the following sources in the proportions stated:

Internal revenue, including income taxes: 73.84 cents.

Customs duties, from imports: 13.35 cents.

Miscellaneous sources, including interest and discount, sale of government property, published domain receipts, fees, fines, penalties and forfeitures, gifts and contributions, redemptions of investments, District of Columbia receipts, and trust fund receipts: 12.81 cents.

Total: 100.00 cents.

How It's To Be Spent.

The estimated expenditures of $3,693,762,073 would be divided in the following proportion for each average dollar:

General functions of government, including legislative, executive, judicial and general administration: 3.28 cents.

Military functions (36.54 cents) including:

General defense, including army and navy: 16.64 cents.

Military pensions, retirement pay, annuities, world war allowances, and life insurance claims: 19.90 cents.

Civil functions (12.59 cents) including:

Does Not Include Postoffice. . . . . Promotion, regulation and operation of marine transportation: 1.48 cents.

Public works, including rivers and harbors: 5.05 cents.

Other civil functions: 6.06 cents.

Non-functional operations (47.50 cents) including:

Refunds and draw backs: 8.39 cents.

Fixed debt charges (41.61 cents) including:

Public debt retirements from ordinary receipts: 14.62 cents.

Interest on the public debt: 26.99 cents.

Disbursement of trust funds: 2.47 cents.

Investments: 0.12 cents.

Total: 100.00 cents.

The foregoing estimates of receipts and expenditures do not include operations of the postal system except for deficiency in postal revenues.

DEMOCRATS FORCE SENATE DEADLOCK

Every senator knows that one man cannot properly fill these two important posts. The next man on the committee is Senator La Follette and he naturally would be chairman if Senator Cummins were removed. This accounts for our voting for La Follette.

"The progressives are perfectly willing that Cummins should continue to hold the presidency of the senate, but they do not think it fair and right or in the interest of good legislation that he try to hold both offices."

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, another of the La Follette supporters, declared the country was opposed to the transportation act, and that he was voting for the best man for chairman to bring about its repeal."

Wheeler Started It.

The fight against the reelection of Mr. Cummins as chairman was precipitated today by Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, who has been assigned to a place on the interstate commerce committee. Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, the republican leader, presented all of the assignments for committees made by the republican and democratic committee on committees, and Mr. Wheeler objected to their consideration en masse.

This objection ordinarily would have forced over until tomorrow consideration of any of the committee assignments, but after a series of conferences on the floor, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the democratic leader, obtained unanimous consent for the approval without vote of all of the selections except that of the interstate commerce committee chairman and for an immediate vote on that office.

There were no nominations, each senator voting for his choice. Senators Brookhart, Iowa; Frazier and Ladd, North Dakota, and Norris and Howell, of Nebraska, all republicans, ## democrats Spring Surprise.

On the first and third ballots Senator Cummins received 41 votes to 39 for Senator Smith, while on the second ballot the vote was 39 for Cummins and 38 for Smith.

Balloting probably will not be resumed tomorrow until late in the day, the senate proceeding meantime to the transaction of other business which may come before it.

The launching of the fight against the reelection of Senator Cummins as committee chairman apparently came as a surprise to leaders of both of the major parties. The democrats have planned to make a move to force an election of a president pro tem, and their motion probably will be presented after the present fight is over.

The house in session for the first time since Thursday, met for 35 minutes, adjourning for another three-day recess. No business was transacted. Republican and democrat committees which are making assignments of house members to various standing committees expect to have their work completed by Thursday.

BORAH PICKS UP SENTINEL'S GAGE

Washington, December 10.—Four resolutions urging action by congress on "pertinent" legislative questions were adopted at a meeting here today of representatives of various patriotic societies and others, called by the Sentinels of the Republic.

One resolution recommended passage of the Wadsworth-Garrett amendment, which would place greater power in the hands of the people in amending the constitution. Another declared against limiting the power of the supreme court and a third urged reduction of the number of government bureaus. The other opposed federal aid legislation generally on the ground that it is "unconstitutional, uneconomic and immoral."

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, told the meeting that too many bureaus

How to Stop Sour Stomach

Chronic With Many People—Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Bring Quick Comfort—Sweeten and Stop Acid, Sour Risings and Such Dyspeptic Distress.

When the fact is considered that even careful people who follow diet rules, get attacked by indigestion, no argument is needed to recommend the best means of relief. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are used by lawyers, doctors, teachers, by business men, hotel keepers, by women, industrial workers, clerks, and the worst abused stomachs in the world, those of a host of travelers.

For thirty years people have learned that they may eat what they like or what is set before them, and no matter what the condition of the stomach, if due to dyspepsia, these wonderful tablets stop gasiness and sour risings, give the stomach the alkaline effect which overcomes acidity and thus they either avoid distress after eating or else they quickly relieve it. Be fortified. Get a 60-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store and arm yourself against indigestion.—(adv.)

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membrane and stops the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung disease, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. "If our forefathers did not make enough money," he added, "they worked harder, and did not run to the government for a bonus. The American stock is changing."

Former Governor Clement, of Vermont, declared a constitution can not tell you what to wear, eat or drink, and in 15 or 20 years our constitution will become a bunch of crazy statutes if we continue adopting amendment after amendment.

Frank L. Borah Accepts Challenge.
A challenge issued by the Sentinels to six United States senators to prove or to publicly withdraw "repeated charges that the supreme court of the United States has 'usurped' its power to declare unconstitutional legislation invalid" brought a response from Senator Borah, of Idaho, one of the senators named.

In a letter addressed to the meeting, Senator Borah declared he was prepared to meet either Louis A. Coolidge, president of the Sentinels, or David Bayne Hill, another member, "upon any rostrum at any time, that you will designate for the purpose of sustaining all charges which have been made against the supreme court of the United States."

The other senators named in the challenge were La Follette, of Wisconsin; Owen, of Oklahoma; Ladd, of North Dakota; Foss, of Ohio, and Brookhart, of Iowa.

OBREGON VOWS TO KEEP SWORD BARE

day. Freedom of speech, writing, action and all conceivable expressions of the human soul.

"Into the satisfied, peaceful, unselfish heart of the Mexican people these traitors have hurled the poisonous dart of self-interest and a loathsome appeal to the lowest emotions of the human spirit."

He rose from his seat and walked to the coping surrounding the balcony. From contemplation of the far-off horizon he turned.

"Tell your people," he said, stretching out his arm, with his clenched fist, and squaring his jaw, "that I regard this revolution as the greatest enemy of my country, and its organizers as greater traitors to our people. The very principles and interests they profess to be fighting for are just those that their activities are threatening to defeat. But the revolutionary ideals we have for three years sought to practice will not be defeated. On them any popular candidate will win and take his place where I stand now."

Not Man of Boasts.
Looking at him, his clear-cut, severe profile silhouetted against the setting sun, I had no difficulty believing that there was a man with no idle boasts. His health appears good and his vitality and stirring power are unquestioned. A man of ill health can not, as he has been doing since his return from Celaya, work from early one morning until the early hours of the next. Always a man of power and action, he now literally radiates decision and firmness. He will lose his life, if necessary, but the fruits of the last long revolution will never be wrested from the people who won them if he can help it.

"You ask about guaranties of foreign lives," the president went on. "While I am here foreign lives and interests will be perfectly protected so long as these and our interests keep out of this private quarrel, which I know they will have enough common sense to do. This is not an Irish fight because of the blood of the Irish who daily authorized to do so may legitimately take part. We will settle this ourselves and without very great trouble. We are not worried over the outcome."

Tears Will Nourish Freedom.
"At this very possibility of a coup in Mexico City," I asked, "the president replied, 'Even poison, if taken in sufficient quantities, is calculated to have singularly unpleasant effects, making further experiments with it impossible. I have no fear for the future. I believe my enemies are passing more sleepless hours than we. They have more cause, I would hate to feel I was in the shoes of General Guadalupe Naranjo, for instance. Out of this bloody fight will spring with renewed life the finest flower of freedom, watered by the tears shed over the bodies of loyal fallen men.'"

He paused and walked back to the table, where he again seated himself.

Is Two-Man Revolution.
"Just as I told you," he continued, "this revolution is not an expression of the Mexican people, who now more than ever in their history, are peace-loving and peace-seeking. It is a revolution apart from the activities of Guadalupe Naranjo in Vera Cruz and Estrada in Jalisco. These men are half-hearted and even fought by comparatively few men, while we have for putting into the field, ten times their number."

"Laborers, peasants, farmers and workers all over the country are preparing to enter the field against the very people who profess to be fighting on behalf of the proletariat."

"Is this evidence of popularity? Is this evidence that this rebellion has the sympathy of the people?"

Is Hurt to Heart's Core.
His fist smashed down on the table. His daughter arose and placed her hand on his arm, and the frown left his face as he looked up at her and smiled. His voice fell.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

"This hurts me to the heart," he continued. "This little bloodshed. They tell the world they are fighting against the imposition of a candidate. General Calles is ready to enter the field himself at the head of 100,000 volunteers; he could enter it, if it were practicable, with every worker in the country except those bought with nation's gold by the ex-secretary of the treasury. Even long-headed conservative elements are coming, in part, to think this so-called imposition is more imaginary than real."

Want Fair Elections.
"We want elections and fair elections. I shall see that we get them. The lives and interests of a loyal and peace-seeking people are not lightly to be trampled on and crushed. The people will attend to the destruction of the false guise of disinterested patriotism."

The president arose, and as I exclaimed myself, he concluded:

"Come again. Have no doubt in our ability to win. We shall win. We have the men, the machinery and the profound consciousness of the righteousness of our cause."

PAY COMMITTEE IGNORES MAYOR

Wells, Alderman I. N. Ragsdale, the fifth member of the committee, did not reach the committee room until the schedules had been practically completed. He urged the committee to be conservative but was ignored.

Members of the board of firemasters and police committee, not members of the salary committee, attended the session and threw their moral support to the Carpenter-Couch combination.

The only important concession made by the committee Monday was to put raises for each class of employees in a separate resolution, grouping privates together, sergeants together, lieutenants together and on up the line in order that an increase for any one class of employees could be voted separately without affecting the others. All the raises, however, were in excess of the figure the mayor set as the maximum the city can afford.

Only One More Meeting.
Council has only one more meeting during this year and unless pay increases are put through at the meeting which will receive approval of the schedule, no increases can be made in firemen's and policemen's pay for 1924. The charter requires that all salaries for them be fixed in the year prior to the year in which they become effective.

are that Colonel Vivanco is carrying out the orders sent him by revolutionary headquarters here to march upon Villa Hermosa, capital of the state of Tabasco, against Governor Garrido, a follower of President Obregon.

Wireless communication between headquarters in Vera Cruz and the headquarters of General Enrique Estrada, commander of the western forces, is being freely maintained.

Among the new prisoners who arrived here today from Jalapa, which was captured by the revolutionists Saturday, is Angel Castan, who was acting governor of the state in the absence in Mexico City of Governor Tejeda.

WAR DEPARTMENT REPORTS CAPTURE

Mexico City, December 9.—(Via Laredo, Texas, December 10.—By the Associated Press.)—A war department statement this evening said:

"When Colonel Aureliano Guerrero captured Ciudad Victoria, capital of Tamaulipas, Sunday, General Cesar Lopez de Lara, governor and supporter of Adolfo de la Huerta, fled disguised, presumably to join the de la Huerta forces. The very principles and interests they profess to be fighting for are just those that their activities are threatening to defeat. But the revolutionary ideals we have for three years sought to practice will not be defeated. On them any popular candidate will win and take his place where I stand now."

An advance of 10,000 troops under General Joaquin Obregon against Jalisco rebels is being delayed until President Obregon confers personally with Obregon and reviews the troops at Tepic.

It is reported from Chihuahua that Nicolas Rodriguez, former rebel leader at El Paso, has crossed the border with a small following into Chihuahua.

The advance guard of General Lazaro Cardenas is reported to have been victorious in skirmishes with Estradistas in the state of Michoacan. The small federal garrison evacuated Alamo, Michoacan, Saturday, it was stated.

FOLLOWERS OF VILLA TO SUPPORT OBREGON.
Mexico City, December 10.—(United News.)—Followers of the murdered Mexican bandit, Francisco Villa, will support the Obregon government in its struggle with the revolutionists, according to private dispatches received here.

Messages from Saltillo, in Coahuila, report the entire state is calm. Governor Enriquez, of Chihuahua, is now in Mexico City, and he does not expect any uprising on the frontier.

Dispatches from San Luis Potosi report that Aurelio Manrique has taken charge of the state government in view of the fact that Prieto Laurens, who had usurped the governorship, has gone over to the Obregon forces. Manrique had claimed the office, but the former, a lieutenant of De La Huerta, is now in open rebellion.

GARZA PAYS DEBT TO ALVARO OBREGON.
(United News.)—General Reynaldo Garza, exiled from Mexico in 1919 following his activities in behalf of Carranza, feared he was in a "debt" of gratitude to President Obregon who allowed him to return to his native land.

The coupon he had given Obregon troops into this city, Sunday morning, taking full possession.

As a result of this deed, it was believed here, Garza probably will be reinstated to his rank of general. President Obregon having called all former army officers to the colors, Garza is now under military rule. General Huertado, commander of the garrison, however, is holding his men under arms prepared to meet any eventuality.

hands of the war finance corporation. Eugene Meyer, formerly a Wall street banker, has been criticized as unsympathetic by farm representatives and Frank W. Mondel, majority leader of the house last year, was not regarded as a friend of the farm bloc.

Wallace felt, therefore, that Coolidge had selected two men who were not especially sympathetic to the farm. He told friends later that Coolidge had made a mistake and that the reaction of the farmers had been unfavorable.

Now another chapter has just been written. The president, in his message to congress, accepted the recommendations of the Meyer-Mondel commission rather than those of Secretary Wallace. Coolidge pursued the idea of financial food shipments, although Wallace had strongly recommended that the president inform it. Then, a few days later, Wallace issued an annual report to the president with an abstract in which his export corporation plan was prominently featured.

Gore to Get Place.
"It is just as well to keep in mind that both industry and labor are beneficiaries of government action and that such action during the war and the two years following has added not a little to the farmer's difficulties. Wallace said pointedly in concluding his argument."

It has been rumored that Wallace is to retire in the near future and that his place will go to Howard M. Gore of West Virginia, now assistant secretary of agriculture. There is no confirmation of this report, which probably arose from the knowledge that there is a distinct lack of accord between Wallace and the farmers. However, Wallace's resignation may be looked for in the spring unless there is a change in the situation.

Had Been in Bad Health.

Mr. Guthrie was removed from the Fort Smith station to the Atlanta station at his own request, June 17, 1922. The change followed a complete nervous breakdown which Guthrie suffered in April, 1922. He is said at that time to have told friends that he needed a rest and also is said to have made a similar statement after he was found in the weather bureau office in the federal building here April 12, 1922, in an unconscious condition, having been overcome by gas fumes.

Mr. Guthrie was a graduate of an eastern law school and was admitted to the bar here several years before he entered the government service. He was especially adept at tennis and for several seasons was one of the city champions.

Guthrie's declining health is said by friends to have been caused by family difficulties. He and his wife were separated about seven years ago, friends of the meteorologist declare. Mrs. Guthrie, a son and two daughters are now living in southern California.

TWO POISONING CASES REPORTED TO POLICE

Poison, taken with suicidal intent, according to police records, claimed two victims in Atlanta Monday.

Mrs. Ruth Turnipseed, age 28, of 218 D'Alvigny street, was hovering near death at Grady hospital Monday night as the result of poison.

Miss Lucile Turnipseed, step-daughter of the suffering woman, told police that she found Mrs. Turnipseed prostrate in the bathroom of the home. No motive for the act can be given by the family.

D. G. Ballard, age 22, giving his address as 89 Park street, swallowed poison while in the Ivy Exchange of the Southern Bell Telephone company Monday, and was rushed to Grady hospital.

Ballard is said to have told attending physicians that business difficulties drove him to take the poison. He is expected to recover.

Position of Mayor.
After the meeting Saturday Mayor Sims reiterated his determination to veto the $20 a month program if council should adopt it.

"I am opposed to any increase in salaries in any shape or form," he said in explaining his opposition to the schedule. "I am in favor of equalizing the burden of taxation so as to let it fall in the right proportion upon all alike."

"I do not think it right to increase taxes in order to increase salaries. I am in favor of paying the rank and file in the police and fire departments an increase of $20 provided we don't have to increase the burden of taxes upon the masses of the people to do so."

"I don't think it fair to increase two departments of the city without increasing others that need more money."

"Some salaries are too low, others too high, and these inequalities should be corrected. The rank and file of policemen and firemen are most deserving of a raise and I am ready to help get it. The $20 a month per month is too much when due regard is given to the financial condition of the city."

"The increase of water rates is a form of taxation. The rate was increased last summer to meet an emergency over which we of the present administration had no control. I am not in favor of creating an emergency in order to raise the water rate."

"If the members of the salary committee want to help the firemen and policemen within the length of the public tow of the city treasury, I am ready to help them to do it."

Seven New Men.
The salary committee's recommendation opened the way to an actual increase of seven men in the fire department by providing for regular first-year salaries for seven supernumeraries who now are paid only for the time they are on duty in place of regular firemen.

It also makes way for the new traffic accident prevention bureau of the police department and for a new position of captain of detectives.

Pay for the chiefs of the two departments is recommended as $4,000 a year, instead of $4,250 as in the first schedule.

The present system of increasing policemen $2 a year each year of service until a maximum is reached after the fourth year is proposed to be changed to give $10 raises each of the first two years, enabling policemen to earn the maximum after two years of service. This change was proposed by Alderman James Armstrong, chairman of the police committee and who is not a member of the salary committee.

Councilman Couch protested that it would give policemen preference over firemen but finally assented to the change.

After the raise schedule had been adopted, item by item, and when complete was found to be substantially the same as the first one, Councilman Couch moved to rescind the recommendation in the first one for department heads. No second was offered to the motion and the committee adjourned.

J. J. O'Donnell, assistant to Forecaster von Herrmann, was the first member of the weather bureau force to receive news of the suicide. He visited the Patterson undertaking parlors and identified the body as that of his old work.

Mr. O'Donnell was reticent in discussing Guthrie's domestic affairs, but admitted that the Guthries had been estranged for some time.

He stated that the deceased left two children, a son and a daughter.

Mrs. Guthrie is said to be in San Francisco, and the letter left behind was addressed to her there. The daughter is also in that city. No one could give information concerning the son, but occupants of the Barfield house stated that he was in some distant college.

Considered Divorce.
Miss Barfield, Mrs. Guthrie's daughter, had been in her place for 18 months the entire time she has been connected with the Atlanta weather bureau. He was a member of the weather bureau force for several years.

She stated that she was in the weather bureau office at the time of the suicide. No answer had been received at a late hour Monday night. Funeral arrangements are in charge of H. M. Patterson & Son. No definite

After the meeting Saturday Mayor Sims reiterated his determination to veto the $20 a month program if council should adopt it.

"I am opposed to any increase in salaries in any shape or form," he said in explaining his opposition to the schedule. "I am in favor of equalizing the burden of taxation so as to let it fall in the right proportion upon all alike."

"I do not think it right to increase taxes in order to increase salaries. I am in favor of paying the rank and file in the police and fire departments an increase of $20 provided we don't have to increase the burden of taxes upon the masses of the people to do so."

"I don't think it fair to increase two departments of the city without increasing others that need more money."

"Some salaries are too low, others too high, and these inequalities should be corrected. The rank and file of policemen and firemen are most deserving of a raise and I am ready to help get it. The $20 a month per month is too much when due regard is given to the financial condition of the city."

"The increase of water rates is a form of taxation. The rate was increased last summer to meet an emergency over which we of the present administration had no control. I am not in favor of creating an emergency in order to raise the water rate."

"If the members of the salary committee want to help the firemen and policemen within the length of the public tow of the city treasury, I am ready to help them to do it."

Seven New Men.
The salary committee's recommendation opened the way to an actual increase of seven men in the fire department by providing for regular first-year salaries for seven supernumeraries who now are paid only for the time they are on duty in place of regular firemen.

It also makes way for the new traffic accident prevention bureau of the police department and for a new position of captain of detectives.

Pay for the chiefs of the two departments is recommended as $4,000 a year, instead of $4,250 as in the first schedule.

The present system of increasing policemen $2 a year each year of service until a maximum is reached after the fourth year is proposed to be changed to give $10 raises each of the first two years, enabling policemen to earn the maximum after two years of service. This change was proposed by Alderman James Armstrong, chairman of the police committee and who is not a member of the salary committee.

Councilman Couch protested that it would give policemen preference over firemen but finally assented to the change.

After the raise schedule had been adopted, item by item, and when complete was found to be substantially the same as the first one, Councilman Couch moved to rescind the recommendation in the first one for department heads. No second was offered to the motion and the committee adjourned.

terson & Son, undertakers, while the note and other effects were turned over to Coffey Paul Donohoe, who will hold an inquest as usual.

J. J. O'Donnell, assistant to Forecaster von Herrmann, was the first member of the weather bureau force to receive news of the suicide. He visited the Patterson undertaking parlors and identified the body as that of his old work.

Mr. O'Donnell was reticent in discussing Guthrie's domestic affairs, but admitted that the Guthries had been estranged for some time.

He stated that the deceased left two children, a son and a daughter.

Mrs. Guthrie is said to be in San Francisco, and the letter left behind was addressed to her there. The daughter is also in that city. No one could give information concerning the son, but occupants of the Barfield house stated that he was in some distant college.

Considered Divorce.
Miss Barfield, Mrs. Guthrie's daughter, had been in her place for 18 months the entire time she has been connected with the Atlanta weather bureau. He was a member of the weather bureau force for several years.

She stated that she was in the weather bureau office at the time of the suicide. No answer had been received at a late hour Monday night. Funeral arrangements are in charge of H. M. Patterson & Son. No definite

Great Bible Campaign of This Paper To Close Within Few Days

It is with genuine regret that this paper is compelled to announce the closing of its wonderful campaign distribution of the Red Letter Bible. Our distribution clerks tell us that we shall probably only have copies enough for those of our readers who bring their orders during the remaining days. The advertisements that have been running in these pages for several weeks past have fully described the merits of this unique volume. We are more than gratified at the response from the public, and are sanguine that through the enormous distribution of the Book of Books in this community, its influence will be felt for years to come. Attention is called to the advertisements that appear in these columns for the next few days and the reader is urged with all sincerity to obtain a copy of the best Bible for family use ever published. The coupon appears daily during the closing period.—(adv.)

Atlanta Knows White Truck Fleets

The largest motor truck fleets in the country are Whites. Many of them start with a single White Truck in a mixed fleet. Gradually, but certainly, the weaker trucks run their brief span of life. The original White keeps at its task each day and repeat orders follow. The Roll Call of White owners shows 593 fleets of 10 or more totaling 21,773 trucks. Only unusual performance in all industries could build this unparalleled record.

THE GOODNESS OF GOD:—Oh, that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men.—Psalm 107:21.

YET TIME!

There is yet time for the legislature to enact a satisfactory tax measure, and in the interest of the great state of Georgia this should be done.

It is said the senate and house are deadlocked. If so, compromises can be made that will be acceptable to both branches, and to the people. And these compromises can be made without subjecting the state to any radically destructive statutory tax legislation by future legislatures.

The people of Georgia want tax revision in a way that will secure more revenue, so that the schools and institutions of the state may be properly maintained. They want, and believe, that this can be accomplished by wider distribution, and without any radical tax increases upon any group or individual. They believe that the tax system of Georgia should be stabilized and standardized so that new capital seeking investment may not be frightened by a constantly swinging tax pendulum that never becomes permanently steady.

The members of the legislature are representative citizens. They have studied tax systems almost continuously for three months in session, all told, this year.

Surely they will not let this extra session close without submitting a constructive constitutional amendment that will be acceptable by the people.

Let us hope the work of the 30-odd days of the extra session may crystallize during the present week into a permanent, fixed, constructive revision schedule to be submitted to the people. The members will go to their homes for the Christmas season happier if they do so, and the people of the state will more readily join them in that spirit.

FRANK SWINNERTON.

Atlanta is being honored by the visit of Frank Swinnerton, of London, celebrated novelist, and literary critic of The Manchester Guardian.

He will lecture Wednesday evening, under the auspices of the Atlanta Writers' club, at the Woman's club auditorium.

This occasion will furnish the opportunity to hear one of the world's most famous authors of today—for the creator of Young Felix and other characters, has displayed an interpretive power possessed by few writers of fiction.

Having been constantly in touch with the inside history of literary affairs in London for 15 or 20 years Mr. Swinnerton has amassed a wealth of personal anecdotes, humorous incidents, valuable sidelights on the personalities and habits of well-known authors which amount to almost a contemporary Vanity Fair of literature. He has kept himself aloof from literary entanglements, by reason of his broad and comprehensive work on The Manchester Guardian, and consequently he is the friend of all the groups, and is thus better qualified to speak of all.

AS TO "ABSORPTION."

It is reported from Harrisburg, the capital of Pennsylvania, that the "repeal of the anthracite coal tax and the profits tax is recommended by State Treasurer Snyder, in a statement released today, on the grounds that the state's financial needs can be cared for by revenue laws in effect prior to 1917. He declared this action should be taken at the next session of the legislature."

Leading newspapers in that state, even among those who vigorously supported Governor Pinchot in his spectacular 1922 campaign, take the same view.

The governor himself, who "settled" the coal miners' wage dispute with the operators by arbitrarily increasing the wages of the miners, which increases were immediately transferred to the coal consumers of the nation, remains obdurate. He is still appealing to the governors of the various states to cooperate with him and with the large consumers looking to "some plan" by which the increase in coal prices, produced by his settlement, may be absorbed or neutralized.

He called a meeting of the governors of all states using anthracite coal. Those who attended told him to a man that it would be well for him to start the "absorption" at home by having Pennsylvania repeal the monopoly tax it imposes upon the gross production of anthracite. This made the governor angry.

And now the state treasurer, who ought to know more about the fiscal condition of the commonwealth than anybody else, comes out fearlessly in favor of a repeal of the coal tax, and unhesitatingly declares the state's finances will permit it. Whether the finances will "permit it" or not, the principle of taxing the people of the other states on a natural Pennsylvania monopoly, which is a necessity throughout the other states of America, is basically wrong. And being wrong it should be repealed.

It is obvious that public sentiment in the home state of anthracite production sustains the idea that if Governor Pinchot would first reduce the price of coal to consumers by repealing the monopoly tax, then the other states will cooperate in making further reductions possible.

This is what the people of the country must have. High taxes produce high prices, naturally. And the people are not only tired of the heavy burdens of taxation, but they are not in a humor to temporize with such a tax as Pennsylvania has imposed upon the anthracite coal consumers of the country.

In view of the recent hootch fatalities in Philadelphia, The Detroit News says: "It's a great little amendment, the Eighteenth, but Uncle Sam had no idea he would have to sit up with it nights."

Of course it will be a "hard winter" — with the animals getting thicker furs for the women to wear.

The way the lawbreakers interpret it now is—"Hell is paved with good dimensions."

The reason they have decided to let King Tut rest in peace is that it's too much trouble to unwrap the bandages around his mummy.

Here's a state of affairs! The Indianapolis News says: "A murder a day keeps the coroner for play."

The Congressional Record comes in for the usual paragraphic welcome.

Let us hope it will be as safe and sane a Christmas as it is able to be.

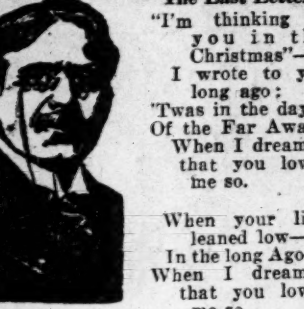

The Rain Man let the Sun out long enough to locate the Christmas land.

It's the merry Christmas feeling that should be widespread at this time.

The Los Angeles Times says that "one of the college professors is trying to prove that bulls are color blind and that most of them will chase a purple or yellow skirt as quickly and as vigorously as they will a red one. In the interests of science and higher education the professor might get a job as tundra to demonstrate his conclusions. In New York a full movement is often inspired by what is read in a yellow paper. That makes it a two-fold affair."

"I'm thinking of you in the Christmas—"
I wrote to you long ago.
'Twas in the day of the Far Away.
When I dreamed that you loved me so.

When your lips leaned low—
In the long Ago—
When I dreamed that you loved me so.

"I'm thinking of you in the Christmas—"
And wondering if it seems

When we met the May
And your kiss made the Christmas dreams?

When your lips leaned low,
In the Long Ago,
And I dreamed that you loved me so!

A Financial Sermon.
(From The Lamar Democrat)
Suppose everybody should suddenly cut his expenditures half in two. The business of the country would go to pieces. Want, misery and starvation would stalk in many a city street.

The advice to give to the average man is to save. What makes the country go is for him to hump himself and make every dollar he can, and spend as he makes, but not to spend quite all of it.

Today's Talk

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

MERE WINNING ISN'T THE TEST.
A "delightful" success these days is all too rare. Too many people are engaged in the outer publication of some goal. Usually money or outward standing position.

But the important thing is the job of winning—the way and manner in which you strive for your goal, whatever it may be.

Tuberculosis is the game, all ways, that is an interesting test that gives you measure to the world.

An extraordinary man of business affairs was engaged in the outer publication of some goal. Usually money or outward standing position.

I know one thing—there are men with whom I have played golf that I wouldn't trust in a business deal, or have as a partner in anything.

No man can cover up for long. We play what we are.

So it isn't the goal, after all, that counts most. It is the way, the manner, the Lincoln, Grant, Stonewall, Jackson, Luther, Wendell Phillips, Gladstone, weren't financial giants or moral leaders at all. Most of them were exceedingly poor men. But what they each left to the world reveals a personal story that is an inspiration to all.

Beauty of character is far more wonderful than any high brilliance of intellect.

Try to make each day's experience—no matter what it may be—happy and helpful, and not bother or worry about the final outcome. That will take care of itself.

Busha, by a majority of 139 votes, with Glendon Tapp leading the vote with a total of 396 out of 450 cast, for council.

Just In Passing

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

We are always glad to have the legislators with us, whether the July sun blazes hot, or the December winds chill to the marrow; but these people are needed at home now.

It's Christmas time. Santa Claus must be looked after; and it's time to kill hogs and make country sausage, and begin smoking hams, and doing all those things that a good farmer feels necessary to do when real winter swings into the picture.

Let's bring this extra session to a close by doing something.

These legislators can get together on a constructive tax program. I know they can.

They are all representative men except two, and those two are representative women.

They know the people back home are watching them; and believe me, when the people pay $2,500 a day for service they want it snappy.

This is the sixth week of this extra session, isn't it?

That's a long time when one takes into consideration the expense involved.

And it is a long time when we consider that Georgia has already had nearly two months of the legislature this same good year of 1923; and that this is one of only four states in the union in which legislatures meet more than once in two years.

Of course we don't want any destructive legislation; and we do want stabilization of taxation.

With those things to watch, let's hope that the legislature will get together on a constitutional amendment in the next day or two.

If the people don't like it they can vote it down at the polls in 1924. If they do like it, they can write it into the constitution.

The thing to do now—after these 34 days of study—is to get together and submit a tax revision measure.

Under the responsibility of the legislature, which has been discharged; and the extra session will not have been in vain.

The dangers and hardships of the pioneers who braved the wilds of the plains in the early days of the republic, as they pushed across the continent, are historically well known. The men of the great bands of marauders, are historically well known. The men of the great bands of marauders, are historically well known.

Words, on the marvelous photo-play, "Covered Wagon," which is now showing at the Atlanta.

In some respects, notable in historical accurateness, as we have learned the history of those trying days of the romances and tragedies of "40, the picture is without a peer.

It has been said, and especially by European directors, that American pictures were great extravaganzas, or, at least, interpretations of fiction, but that in historical setting they were seriously and almost deplorably lacking.

That criticism has not altogether been undeserved, for too much attention, perhaps, has been given to the unreal and the unnatural, even to the extent of inciting false ideas of life, but in "Covered Wagon," a historical masterpiece, the criticism is irrevocably answered.

From the opening of the close, carrying through every detail of the rugged hardships of those who first human beings persists in remaining at work distributing his infection to all who come within his spray range.

It is to prevent the passing of this spray, either way, that the gauze or mask should be worn.

If the mask covers the nose and the mouth and has not less than 10 layers of fine cheesecloth or gauze made wire 32 threads to the inch, it will effectively stop the spread of respiratory infections.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
I have a broken blood vessel on the right side of my face, about one inch from the nose. It has been there about a year, and I am sure it can be done for it, and whether it is likely to develop into anything serious. (Mrs. J. R.)

Answer—It is a dilated artery. It is a dilated artery. It is a dilated artery. It is a dilated artery. It is a dilated artery.

Is tuberculosis contagious? Is it dangerous to live in the same house with a person who has it? Is it dangerous to eat at the same table? (J. S.)

Answer—No; it is not contagious; there is no danger in living in the same house with a person who has it, unless there is a constant or habitual intimate contact with the person who has it and that person is unaware of it. Tuberculosis is infectious, communicable under special circumstances. It is not contagious. It is not dangerous. There is no danger in living near or in the same house or eating at the same table with a person who has it, unless there is a constant or habitual intimate contact with the person who has it and that person is unaware of it.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

To the Top of The World.

The wildest of Jules Verne's imaginary adventures pales in significance to the proposed flight to the Shennandoah to the North Pole. Right out to the horror of frozen wastes of endless ice-fields, grave of many brave men. There is valiant recklessness in the undertaking. Rear Admiral Moffet, long since tired of pacing the heaving decks, wants to accompany the flight of the giant dirigible. Secretary Denby ought to give him the chance.

The Hollywood Blues.
If you must come to Hollywood bring enough money with you to last for five years and bring your mother with you, says Mary Pickford, queen of the silver screen. The Los Angeles chamber of commerce agrees with her. The fact is, Los Angeles has grown large enough. There are thousands of young people out there on the Pacific coast who are disgruntled and discontented with relatives and want out there. It was like the end of the rainbow and promises did not always come true. The warning from Mary is timely.

Canada Has New Status.
Canada has changed her status in the world. It was done at the recent imperial conference in London, where the country was represented by Premier Mackenzie King. Canada is now an independent nation, fed by the British imperial policy. In case of war Canada decides for herself whether she will take part. No longer an entangled web of the world, she has become a free nation.

English Labor Not Revolutionary.
Some of the English papers are half hysterical over the prospect of a labor government. The next few days may see some remarkable political maneuvering. In the event Ramsay MacDonald is asked to form a cabinet, he may not see his way clear to manage the ship of state. Fully aware that although the Grits and Tories fight each other bitterly they may feel that they are on common ground once the laboring men are in power. Are they revolutionaries? There is a left wing with revolutionary tendencies. The French line is not more radical than Mr. Lloyd George was when he was a young Welsh lawyer. The responsibility of office will bring mature reflection. They will find that they go to power, they must administer the affairs of an empire, which is not all labor.

Spain Comes Back.
Spain is being regenerated under leadership of Primo Rivera, the dictator. The French line is not more radical than Mr. Lloyd George was when he was a young Welsh lawyer. The responsibility of office will bring mature reflection. They will find that they go to power, they must administer the affairs of an empire, which is not all labor.

Origin of Life.
The Gobi desert was the distribution center of life on this earth. Not only the cradle of humanity, but according to zoological and biological experts of the Roy Andrews' expedition to Mongolia. The traces of the first man are found in the sands of the desert to the fact that 10,000,000 years ago there were giant monsters on the earth who have been survived. Whether man was present in those far-off days when "the spirit of the Lord moved over the abyss" is still a matter of doubt.

Hollander Waterway Experts.
Dutch engineers have been summoned to build railways and bridges in the kingdom of Siam. Other engineers from the country of dykes are being sent to build a canal through the Yang-Tze and Yellow rivers in China. A few years ago Krauss, minister of waterways in Holland, said the harbor of Rio de Janeiro. The Hollanders are still the greatest water engineers in the world. Circumstances have equipped them for the great task. The history of their country is a continued battle against their hereditary enemy, the water, and the shallow marshes of Zuid-Holland and Utrecht at one time or other were the graves for mighty armies.

Dominion Premiers Bad Dressers.
Now that the dominion premiers have returned to their homes, London tailors are devoting some space in the newspapers to their dress. They claim that the men who stand at the head of the independent empire, forming the British empire are bad dressers. MacKenzie King, of Canada, had the only favorable comment. He said: "I don't know what dress matters." When Britain was in danger, the dominion premiers came to the rescue of the motherland, even Senators, the men who had fought the British in one of the most spectacular guerrilla wars of modern history, rallied to the aid of Britain and added some wonderfully rich territory to the empire. The compatriots of MacKenzie King stemmed the onslaught of the German masses on the coast cities of France in 1915. If the crown prince had been successful that time he would have trained his guns on Dover and Folkestone and Britain would have been forced to give in.

Willie Hath Spoken.
The crown prince, recently returned from a holiday in Holland, has spoken. With 20,000 men, whom I would select, I could smash this republican machine in the fatherland," he is reported to have said. Yes, and with 100,000 men whom Mr. Fuch will select, he will dance a merry tune before he is taken prisoner.

What is the most characteristic tree of Cuba?
The royal palm.

What will keep insects away from trees?
Place a wide band of cotton batting about the wood attacked at some convenient height, holding it in place with wire. The edges of the batting, protruding from underneath the wire, when fluffed, present an impassable barrier to the insects.

Of what nationality was the Virgin Mary?
She was a Jewess.

What languages are spoken in Switzerland?
German is spoken by 69 per cent of the people; French by 21 per cent; Italian by 8 per cent.

What are the specifications for fruit vinegars?
There should be made from the fruit of which it bears, and have an acidity of four grams of acetic acid per 100 cubic centimeters. The foreign substance should be ascertained by a chemist, or some one familiar with chemical procedure, as follows: Dilute 10 cc. of the sample with recently boiled water, and add 10 cc. of a 10 per cent solution of N-2 alkali, using phenolphthalein as an indicator. One cc. of N-2 alkali is equivalent to 0.050 grams of acetic acid.

What is a good recipe for Philadelphia scrapple?
Take a cleaned pig's head and boil until the flesh slips easily from the bones. Remove all the bones and chop fine. Set the liquor in which the meat was boiled aside. Chop the meat and season well with pepper and salt. Let it boil again and thicken with cornmeal as you would in making ordinary scrapple, mush, by letting it sit over a fire until it is thick. Prevent lumps. Cook an hour, stirring constantly at first, afterward cutting back on the fire. When done, pour into a long, spare pan, not too deep, and mold. In cold weather this can be stored in a box, and sliced and saute in butter or dripping.

What is agricultural chemistry?
That branch of chemical science which deals with the problems of the soil, the nutrition of plants and animals, the composition of their products, and their value as food for man and animals. Its field borders on those of vegetable and animal physiology on the one hand, and of physics and geology on the other; and in working out problems of agriculture the agricultural chemist has frequently been led into these adjoining sciences.

How long does it take to go from Key West to Havana?
It is an overnight trip, taking about eight and one-half hours.

Did Rogers Hornsby, now with the St. Louis National League team, play in St. Louis during the 1917 season?
He did.

Are there third-class cabins on the Aquitania and its private?
There are third-class cabins on the Aquitania but they are not private.

What is the capital of the state of New York?

Is it advisable to raise martens for their fur?
The biological survey does not encourage the raising of these animals for their fur. It is almost impossible to have any success with them as they do not breed in captivity.

A TENDERFOOT IN MEXICO

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

Mexico City, December 10.—It was a surprise to me to find the train in this metropolis after two days of cactus-dotted desert. In an ancient horridly crowded, and well-lit drive to the hotel through wide avenues that very much resembled Paris.

It was early morning. Ladies and gentlemen, in light frocks, were walking on their sidewalks. They were dressed in the most elegant and the most expensive. They were walking on their sidewalks. They were dressed in the most elegant and the most expensive.

At the Regis, where we stopped, the uniformed flunkies were as thick as they are in New York. The hotel is thoroughly modern in equipment. From the balcony window of our room one looks out over the capital. It rests in a huge bowl with mountains on all sides.

One could see the ancient towering Popocatepetl with its snow-capped peak. The elevation is high, the air is light and one is inclined to something extremely home-like in a darkened room with a rumpled bed. We have "No Bananas," on her guitar, at her balcony window across the way.

Our first few hours were marked, however, by a slight disturbance. My wife missed a ring. We had spent the morning of a hotel in St. Louis sometime ago with a lost ring which was later found. It had been placed in the toe of a slipper—so we were wary.

We were the ring could not be found. We called the bell boy who served us breakfast, the bell boys who carried our luggage, and then the assistant manager and manager in turn. We were planning to call the police when the ring was found where it had been placed—in a jewel box in the trunk.

Mexico seems to be an American "easy mark" just as Americans are in Europe. Prices flare up automatically as the gringo approaches. The railroad porter expects a gratuity for carrying bags to the carriage. For rendering the same service to a Mexican would have been grateful for 20 centavos. A peso is 50 cents in American money and 20 centavos a dime.

On the streets one sees the cosmopolitan sprinkling of Piccadilly. Monocles and spats, a turbaned Moroccan prince, a Broadway actress carrying a pom, a crowd of starchy Chinese ladies with cane, American tourists with kodaks, wide hatted Texas cattle girls, and, of course, the sandaled Mexican peon and the hooded barefoot women.

The cabarets and dancing places advertise American performers. Most of the names are familiar. I saw one, save one who is quite the vogues. He was formerly an announcer in a second-rate Eighth Avenue cabaret.

In a bar in the center of town we found that all Mexicans do not run to type. The bartender was as typical of the thousands one used to see in New York as could be imagined. His auburn hair was closely cropped. His eyes blue and complexion fair. In appearance he was thoroughly Irish. He could scarcely believe I could not speak a word of English. Like all Mexicans, he smoked incessantly as he worked. He pointed out that a Mexican never puts his cigarette down after lighting it. This bartender had an uncanny way of switching from one hand to another while mixing drinks, preparing sandwiches and making change. Bell boys enter the room to answer calls smoking, as the porter expects a gratuity. Hotel clerks and clerks in stores smoke while waiting on you—and all follow the Mexican custom of never laying the cigarette down.

SERMONS TO LIVE BY

BY ELAM FRANKLIN DEMPSEY

GIVE THANKS.
Text: "O give thanks unto the Lord: for He is good." Psalm 118:1.
Praise is the duty of the Christian. He is engaged in a battle with Satan. He is engaged in a battle with Satan. He is engaged in a battle with Satan.

When anxiety comes, let thanksgiving drive it far from us. "Be careful (anxious) for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto the Lord." And "the peace of God" will supplant your anxious fears and fill you with that joy which is the strength of the good is of the devil.

A spirit of discouragement cannot survive in an atmosphere of praise and thanksgiving.

GRAVEURE TO SING IN ATLANTA TONIGHT

A new and interesting concert star will be introduced to an Atlanta audience tonight at the auditorium when Louis Graveure, the baritone, will be presented as the third of the civic concert series attractions by the Atlanta Music club.

Mr. Graveure comes to the city with a brilliant reputation in eastern and northern art centers. As a singer of beautiful songs, he is said to be unexcelled on the concert stage; and his numbers have a wide range, both in their origin and treatment. He sings those songs which have a direct appeal not only to musical initiates, but to the ordinary mortal as well.

A large audience is expected to be on hand to hear him. The sale of tickets for the concert was opened Monday at the Cable Piano company, and a large number of reservations were secured. Popular prices ranging from one to two dollars prevail.

DAVID B. MITCHELL FOUND DEAD IN BED

David B. Mitchell, 40, wholesale coal dealer, was found dead in bed at his home on Collier road early Monday morning. A coroner's jury gave the cause of his death as heart failure.

Mr. Mitchell had apparently been stricken while reading a book, the open book being found propped before him, when his death was discovered by members of his family.

He is survived by his widow, one son, David B. Mitchell, Jr., one stepson, George Thompson; one stepdaughter, Miss Laurence Louise Thompson; three sisters, Mrs. R. C. Congdon, of Atlanta, Mrs. G. C. Leidy and Mrs. J. C. Holderness, and two brothers, Steven and Edward Mitchell, of Philadelphia. Greenberg & Bond in charge.

Hundreds of "Betty Ann" Dolls Ready for Delivery; HASTE URGED UPON WORKERS AND PROSPECTIVE ENTRANTS AS CLOSE NEARS Scores of Delighted Winners Get Prizes on Monday

Ready for delivery. Just a few of the magnificent "Betty Ann" dolls offered by The Constitution absolutely free of charge to its readers, which were Monday removed from storage in order that winners may secure them without delay. The offer officially expires on December 20, and a great rush of winners is expected within the next week.

"Ready to go." That's the word that came from the "Betty Ann" department of The Constitution bright and early Monday morning following publication of the fact that The Constitution's great free Christmas toy offer officially expires on December 20.

Scores upon scores of beautiful "Betty Ann" dolls, the finest made by any American manufacturer and the triumph of all toyland, were moved from warehouse storage into the "Betty Ann" department in anticipation of rush of victorious workers during the next week or ten days. Each mail brought in a large number of completed subscription books, and all day long little girls and grown-ups who had completed their books came in to report their success.

Supervised at Beauty. One woman who won a "Betty Ann" to give her little girl as a Christmas present, declared that she had never seen any doll to compare with the prizes being awarded by The Constitution.

"Betty Ann" is far more costly and beautiful than I ever imagined she would be," declared the delighted winner, and her statement was echoed and re-echoed throughout the day.

Over a hundred "Betty Ann" dolls have already been delivered to winners in The Constitution's offer, which is conceded to be the most sensational toy opportunity ever afforded readers of any southern newspaper.

One little girl who received her doll Monday entered the game only last Thursday, and she stressed the fact that anyone who throws real enthusiasm into the pleasant work can win in practically no time.

"I urge everyone who wants the most beautiful dolly imaginable," she said, "to get into the game without delay. Christmas is only a short time off, but it's easy to win a 'Betty Ann' in one or two days."

Haste is Urged. Nearly four hundred "Betty Ann" dolls remain on hand to be given away between now and December 20, and all persons who have entered the game are urged to rush their completed books to The Constitution as soon as it is possible. Arrangements to award or ship the magnificent toys promptly have been perfected, but in view of the fact that several hundred dolls are to be packed and sent away, haste is advisable.

"Betty Ann"—valued at over $10 in retail toy stores—will be given free to any person who secures eight new subscriptions to The Daily and Sunday Constitution. Numerous little boys and girls have accomplished this in one day's time, proving that there is still ample time for any person who desires one of these beautiful dolls to get into the game and win handily before Christmas.

In this issue of The Constitution appears a full page advertisement giving full particulars of the great offer. Turn to it and act now. "Betty Ann" wants to come and live with you.

MRS. WACHENDORFF RESTS IN OAKLAND CEMETERY TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Bertha Wachendorff, prominent Atlanta woman and the widow of Edward Wachendorff, a pioneer in the florist business in this city, who died Monday morning at the residence, 503 Simpson street, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon from the First Presbyterian church, of which she was a member. Dr. J. Spole Lyons, pastor of the church, will officiate and interment will be private in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Wachendorff, who was eighty-one years of age, had been in failing health for about a year. She had been ill for about a week. Her husband formerly operated a florist store under the name of the Atlanta Florist Bazaar. The firm is now known as Wachendorff Brothers.

Mrs. Wachendorff had been prominently connected with the First Presbyterian church for a long period. She was born in Ludwigsburg, Germany, and came to Atlanta in 1884. Surviving Mrs. Wachendorff are two daughters, Mrs. Bertha W. Ramsey and Mrs. B. W. Bell; three sons, Charles J. and Edward Wachendorff, the florists, and Eugene C. Wachendorff, architect, and two grandchildren, Miss Annie Ramsey and Roy C. Ramsey.

ASKS AID OF POLICE IN FINDING HER SON

Broadcasting an appeal for aid in locating her son, Ira Valle Donaldson, formerly of Lake, Miss., Mrs. J. L. Donaldson, now of Meridian, sent a message to Chief of Police James L. Beavers Monday, in which she prays that her son may be prevailed upon to return home before her death. The letter states that young Donaldson, now 22 years of age, left home four years ago, and was last heard from in Atlanta.

3D WARD BOOSTERS WILL HEAR ADDRESS

Former Mayor James L. Key will deliver an address on future development at the meeting of the Third Ward Boosters' club at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the auditorium of the Stanton school. Grant street. Charles P. Martin, chairman of the entertainment committee, has arranged a special musical program which will include numbers by Mrs. DeLemar.

MRS. BOWLES INJURED WHEN STRUCK BY AUTO

Struck down by an automobile driven by a young woman, who left the scene without being identified, Mrs. M. L. Bowles, of 91 East Thirtieth street, was picked up at the intersection of Marietta and Forsyth streets Monday morning and taken to Grady hospital, where physicians stated that she had suffered slight injuries. Police are said to be in possession of the automobile license number of the car.

Dr. J. R. Vannelt, a professor at Gammon Theological seminary, suffered severe injuries when the automobile, in which he was driving, was struck by a truck owned by the Crown Candy company, and said to have been driven by Milton Leonard, a negro, on McDonough road Monday morning. Dr. Vannelt was removed to his home on the seminary campus, where his injuries were dressed. He suffered severe cuts and bruises.

Three Newspapers Give $1,000 Each To Oglethorpe

Subscriptions of $1,000 each from the three daily newspapers of Atlanta, The Constitution, Journal, and Georgian, to the special fund of $150,000 which must be raised by friends of Oglethorpe university in Atlanta before January 1, in order to make a similar amount from a friend outside the city, were announced at the luncheon meeting of campaign committees and workers at the Wincoff hotel Monday.

The opening gun of the drive was fired earlier in the day when the students and faculty of the university met in the auditorium of Lupton hall and rallied 100 per cent to the appeal made by J. R. Bachman, general chairman of the campaign. Approximately $10,000 was subscribed, every faculty member, student and employee of the institution present making a pledge. The money raised at this meeting will go to the credit of the division headed by Major Fonville McWhorter, which is composed largely of alumni of the school. The two teams of this division are captained by Joseph R. Murphy and Cecil Lemon, alumni of the college.

Short Talks Made. Talks were made by J. R. Bachman, Dr. J. F. Sellers, dean of the Oglethorpe faculty; Dr. A. S. Libby, head of the school of commerce and business administration; Joseph B. Murphy and "Bob" Nicholas, a former captain of the school's football team.

"The party giving Atlanta this kind of a dare has a contract on its hands," said Mr. Bachman, in his opening remarks to the assemblage. "I know the time specified is short—two short thorough organization, and I know the holiday season is right on us. Then, too, I know that the greatest campaign in our history has just been concluded, but I also know Atlanta. Atlanta believes in Oglethorpe university and realizes what institutions of this character mean to our city and state. Atlanta believes in the type of young men and women who are the product of Oglethorpe—believes in and admires also that plucky group of athletes who electrified the whole country with their never-say-die spirit in the recent football season; and we are going to see that the university has our support."

Needs Are Self-Evident. Mr. Murphy stated that it was not necessary for anyone to tell the faculty and student body of Oglethorpe how badly they needed the facilities for which the money would be spent upon completion of the present campaign. The way in which you are needed into this auditorium and overflowing into the corridors demonstrates better than anything we can say the dire need of a large hall which will accommodate any and all meetings of the student body," he said.

Mr. Murphy said the body of alumni of the university had planned originally to raise $25,000 towards the present campaign, but that with the announcement of Major Fonville McWhorter as general of their division it had been decided to double the amount. "Already," he said, "nine members of the alumni association have joined the board of trustees—founders of the school and pledged $1,000 each, so that combined with the amount raised here today we have nearly completed our original quota. It was pointed out by Mr. Murphy that three of those joining the board were captains of the university's first three football teams: W. J. Boswell of 1917, R. G. Nicholas of 1918, and Cecil Lemon of 1919. "Bob" Nicholas declared that the workers intended to "sweep around their own door-steps before asking the people of Atlanta to do any sweeping," in order that the cause might be recognized as a worthy one.

Fighting Spirit. Speaking before the luncheon meeting Monday, Major McWhorter stated that Oglethorpe university is turning out the best of men Georgia needs today. "We need men in this state who can do things—men who can fight," he said, "and the men of Oglethorpe university have always demonstrated one of the cleanest and best fighting spirits I have ever seen."

The luncheon meeting Monday was devoted largely to developing plans for an intensive campaign, and Mr.

Bachman stated that similar meetings would be held each day at the Wincoff at 12:30 o'clock. Short talks were made by Edgar Watkins, president of the board of trustee-founders; Dr. Jacobs, president of the school; Mrs. J. Cheston King, chairman of the special committee of the woman's board; Joe Hunter, Major Fonville McWhorter, and Mr. Bachman, who presided.

QUALITY IS THE CORNERSTONE OF EVERY GENUINE BARGAIN...

- Quality is the thing that makes an article worth while; quality is to merchandise what sincerity is to man!
- Everything a man may do falls flat if sincerity is lacking . . . and merchandise quickly gives out when quality has been left out.
- Money is only worth what it will buy. Purchasing where cheapness is the one policy is not economy by any means—
- The one thing that makes your money worth while is the SERVICE of the merchandise it commands, and NOT the size of the package; three cheap articles may not be worth half of one good one!
- Quality is the cornerstone of every genuine bargain—be sure you get it! Savings come only through SERVICE; one good article will outlast many uncertain ones . . . and THIS is where there is REAL VALUE, now and always.
- To find quality, go to the store that is known for it.

Incidentally, you may be glad to know that business has been splendid at YOUR STORE—Muse's. The sales for this year are far ahead of 1922—thanks to your appreciation of QUALITY.

GREB LOSES TO TUNNEY--BASEBALL MAGNATES BUSY

Harry Carries Fighting But Kind-Hearted Judge Saw Victory For Eugene

Hans Wagner Begins His Story Tomorrow

Reminiscences by the man who has repeatedly been called the greatest baseball player of all time will begin in the Wednesday morning issue of The Constitution, and on these sport pages, daily and Sunday thereafter, until the forty installments of the great series have been completed.

It is to be a distinct treat for the fans.

For instance—what is baseball's most difficult play? Do you know a bone when you see it—or are you like some folks who yelp in raspberry chorus at a stroke of baseball genius? Hans' story deals with all of these things and is breezy, chock-full of sparkling anecdote, besides.

In his first little talk with The Constitution's readers, tomorrow morning, he will talk a bit of baseball's great war and will tell why he stayed with Pittsburg when jumping meant $2,500 a year to him.

SIKI SOUGHT FOR LOCAL FRAY

BY PAUL WARWICK.

The pugilistic quiescence which has reigned over Atlanta for high on two weeks now threatens to become a fistic bedlam, once the course of events gets started back to normal—and now Walk Miller struts forth with the announcement that yet another more alluring offer has been made to him.

But Siki, requesting his colorful appearance in this city during the Yuletide holidays.

Walk would find Siki throw his fists in the general direction of "Tiger" Flowers, dark-complexioned protégé of the Mike Magee, and it is for a coming together of these swarthy persons that Miller is now laboring.

The battling person over the waters, no doubt, is demanding quite a tidy sum for appearances in this country, both because of his fancy that gold grows on trees and because of the comparative difficulty he has in securing potent libations for his Senegalese thirst.

Walk Talks Big Money.

Walk has previously made an offer to the dark body that crushed the life of France and in turn got crushed by the Irish shillab of Mike McGivern before the mailed fist got tender—but Walk's figures were not quite loud enough to be heard in Siki circles.

The latest figure that Walk has come up with is just about the quantity that the gin-breathing behemoth of the Parisian boulevard desires—so it is not surprising that before his fight with the stone lions.

Walk states further, however, that if he cannot secure Siki for the auditorium, he will bring back George Robinson, the brown boy who gave Tiger enough of a scare to make him retire two weeks ago, come Tuesday night.

The return of Robinson to the auditorium ring, with Flowers eye back and everything, would not be such a bad example of intensified promotion, itself, some to think about it.

McAuliffe showed up in his corner. His seconds were behind him with a bucket of milk-toast and several spare hairnets for his whiskers. But Brittain did not appear.

It developed Monday that Brittain started for the arena but that his whiskers became fouled in the running gear of his wheel chair and stalled traffic until he could run the chair back five miles and unwind his shrubbery.

By that time was late. McAuliffe chuckled Monday night. "I can lick him in a hat-box with 40 acres to spare."

New Haven, Conn., December 10.—Winslow H. Lovejoy, of Mont Clair, N. J., was elected captain of the Yale football team this afternoon. He has played center two seasons and has been elected for many all-American teams.

Not Dead a Bit, Says Master Mind

London, December 10.—John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, who has been touring Europe, has sent to the Associated Press the following message as his answer to vague rumors of his death: "I am not a dead one, but I do not know it. You can tell them all that I am still running the bases. I expect to go to Ireland the latter part of the week, when Hughie Jennings arrives. That does not look as though I am dead, does it?"

On With the Dance

Reclining in Elysian ease among the downy pillows of our office divan, watching the wispy spirals of smoke course upward from my Turkish cigarette to caress the shimmering surface of the cloth of gold tapestries with which the sporting department is hung; listening to the enchanting strains of muted violins that play nearby—strange thoughts do come to me.

My man Jenkins (Ikey) treads the plush-covered floor with panther-like tread, ministering to my slightest wish. Another sip from that beaker of dark fluid, if you please.

The fumes of a chocolate ice cream sundae mount to my brain (of course somebody had to laugh) and my realization is complete: It's a fact—there hasn't been a boxing match at the auditorium in two weeks. There has been a lull. Yes, a lull. Good word, lull.

It is scarcely fair to link the formation of a boxing commission with the absence of bouts. That would never do!

AND TO MAKE IT STILL MORE REMARKABLE.

When this dire realization mounts to my brain, if any, a still more potent realization follows it. There are no bouts scheduled. Something has, indeed, happened to a town that ordinarily can bank on a bout every ten days, and catch and every week, that slithers gently by.

Is it the approach of the Christmas season? The Flowers-Robinson melee, the last we had with us, was a mighty fine scrap and pleased mightily well those who viewed it. The football season is dead and gone, the sporting devotees have little nothing to occupy their time until the basketballs start fitting themselves into headlines with great regularity.

We wonder if Atlanta will ever see another fight. Has everybody stopped considering it as a pastime?

THE WORLD IS NORMAL AGAIN.

We'd gotten just far with our meditations. Hadn't decided anything. When into the office, jaunty and excited, strolls Louie Most. We breathed a sigh of relief and canceled the order for carboic acid we were preparing to drink if somebody didn't have a fight pretty soon.

"Where there's managers, there's challenges," we quoted, ungrammatically.

You, who know Louie know that we didn't have to wait more than a half an hour before he mentioned Battling Barnett, and Barnett's desire to meet Lew Silver. And Louie, chaperoned by Duke Barry, is trying to create some interest in the fight.

So, we can't say easy now, the fighting game is not entirely dead. It has just been taking a well-earned rest for cash customers who also are taking a well-earned rest.

Soon again the old auditorium will ring with the applause that pinkens cauliflower ears. And consequently there is no reason for us all to become despondent.

PREP BASKETBALL SEASON PROMISES TO BE A LIVELY ONE

BY GORDON KEITH.

Football has been practically forgotten in the camps of the prep and college basketball players. Most of the teams have suffered particularly this year by the graduation of their best players.

Four of the eight teams in the league are champions at least share a title with another of the quintets. G. M. A. holds perhaps the biggest of them all, the Cotton States' title.

And any of the teams in this respect, Hearn and Patton, her two sensations of last year, being back in harness. Boys' High, on the other hand, has lost every man on the first five except the scrappy little guard, Randy Gibbs.

State Champs Hard Hit.

The state champs are very hard hit by the loss of Pat Stephens, head coach of O'Dwyer, Brown and Rankin, but Coach Johnson has been working hard with his big supply of candidates and some promising men have been discovered. Courts is a very promising youngster, and though very light, and this his first year to make an effort to land a berth on the squad, he is a demon with a basketball and one of the surest shots the wiper has seen.

Heard, football star of real ability, and member of the basketball squad of last year, is another of Coach Johnson's promising players. Haun, another of the men to have worked up from the scrubs, is doing his stuff this winter and will make a strong bid for a varsity berth. Coach Johnson has a real job ahead of him, however, to develop and knit together a quintet which can compare favorably with the flashy squad of the '22 season.

Arrange Own Schedules.

At a recent meeting of the prep league officials it was voted to do away with the type of schedule employed last year, where the league arranged to play a certain number of games at a certain time, and to arrange an individual schedule to suit their own liking, and a tournament will be played at the close of the season on the Auditorium court, at the expense of the college tournament is being played, the games to be played when the colleges are not using the court.

BY EMMETT SIZEMORE.

Auburn, Ala., December 10.—(Special.)—The Auburn football team, star center for the past two years, captain and with all the 1923 squad slated to return to Auburn next year, with the exception of Captain "Big" Reagan, who has played his four years out, football prospects for the 1924 season presents a somewhat rosy hue compared with the opening of September. Lawrence will have as his ranking officer, Alternate Captain Clyde "Harbory" Pruitt on the firing line. Pruitt has also made a name for himself as end in southern football and will make an excellent assistant to the general in the absence of the popular captain-elect and pivot man.

While the Tigers losses are estimated at one man, Captain Reagan, the loss will be keenly felt. Captain Reagan though comparatively light for guard duty, has proved to be a great asset to the forward division of the Tiger machine. His unceasing ability to come out in interference, blocking and his characteristic sticking in and carrying the enemy's line, the enemy territory has won for him the appropriate title of "the fighting captain of the '23 Tigers."

Others May Return.

Rumors are afloat about the Tiger stronghold that "Doc" Ray, "Noisy" Grisham and "Babe" Pence are seriously considering their return to the Tiger fort in September to cast their lots for places in the Tiger line. No authentic information as to the return of this trio of linemen at this early date. It was the losses of these fellows along with that of Charley Gibson and "Slick" Moulton that made the building of the 1923 machine so difficult for the coaches. The loss of this quintet along with seven or eight others who had a lot of experience and plenty of weight made it hard sailing in the face of a hard schedule.

The record of the past season shows three victories, three tie games and three reversals. Only one loss was booked against the Tigers in a conference game, this being to the University of Georgia, by a 7 to 0 score. During the season 96 points were ac-

V. RICHARDS IS RANKED FIRST

New York, December 10.—Vincent Richards, of Yonkers, member of the Davis Cup team for the last two years, holds number one position in the Metropolitan Men's Tennis ranking for 1923, according to the list made public tonight. First place among women players goes to Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, former national champion.

Francis T. Hunter, of New Rochelle, runner-up in the world's championship at Wimbledon, is ranked next to Richards. The next ten in the men's list are: Frank T. Anderson, Watson M. Washburn, George King, Hugh G. M. Kellner, S. Howard Voshell, Percy L. Kynaston, Cedric Major, Jerome Lang, Walter Merrill Hall and Herbert L. Bowman.

The women's ranking list includes only 10 names. In order, after Mrs. Mallory, they are: Miss Eleanor Goss, Miss Lillian Scherman, Miss Helen G. Lockhorn, Miss Mayme MacDonald, Seattle Star, who holds the national clay court title, Miss Mary Bayard, Miss Helen Hooker, Miss Edna C. Haislett, Mrs. Edward Raymond and Miss Ceres Barker.

Looks Like Luque Loses Lady Luque

Havana, Cuba, December 10.—(Special.)—Adolfo Luque, pitcher of the Cuban National team, is being sued for divorce by his wife, Senora Eugenia Valdes Luque, according to Herald of Cuba today which publishes court notice saying the first proceedings have been filed. The couple have a seven-year-old daughter, Olga Luque.

Luque is a twister, who led all major league moundmen last season, is managing the Havana baseball team in the Cuban National League this winter. No one can say for the divorce proceedings was given.

Stribling Bout In East Delayed

New York, N. Y., December 10.—(Special.)—At the request of Dave Rosenberg, who has been ill for some time, his bout with "Young" Stribling, of Macon, Ga., has been postponed until the afternoon of New Year's Day, according to announcement made here today.

Havana Wants To See Silver

Low Silver, popular little Atlanta scrapper, is finding it necessary to make a short tour of the island to surrounding southern cities and achieve a little coin of the realm, according to Max Abelson, his manager, who finds it impossible to tear Low away from his studies at the Southern Dental college long enough to indulge in the trips.

Max reports that Silver will probably take a jaunt to Havana, Cuba, after Silver's school duties slacken up for him later in December. Havana has been after Low for some time, says Max, especially since the Atlanta boy whipped Aramis del Pino and Carlos Cusack, two of the island's best bets.

Navy Won't Meet The Wolverines

Annapolis, Md., December 10.—The navy and Michigan will not meet on the gridiron next fall, after all. Notwithstanding the friendly services of Secretary of the Navy Denby, a Michigan alumnus and varsity football man, the Wolverines were compelled to turn down the Navy's invitation to a game here on October 11. Michigan has a hard game scheduled with Illinois, one week later, and Coach Yost thought his men should not go journeying so far so soon before the conference struggle.

John Martin Is Chosen To Head Southern Loop For Next Five Years

Tribute to Donovan.

Chicago, December 10.—Christy Mathewson, president of the Boston Braves, paid tribute Monday to "Wild Bill" Donovan, killed in the wreck of the Twentieth Century Limited in New York.

"Big Six" said he had figured on Donovan to manage the Braves in case he failed to get Dave Bancroft. He described the first Major League game he had pitched against the other veterans back in 1901.

"To this day," Mathewson said, "I remember the splendid appearance of Donovan as he stood on the hill. He was an imposing and fascinating fellow. His personality and appearance stand out in my mind still as the greatest feature of that eventful game—greater than my first big league victory."

Chicago, Ill., December 10.—President John D. Martin of the Southern Association was re-elected president and treasurer for a term of five years at the annual meeting today by unanimous vote.

The Southern Association directors adjourned their meeting shortly after noon to permit President Martin to attend sessions of the national board of arbitration of the minor leagues, which is to take up the McCarthy coast league case this afternoon.

They will meet again tomorrow morning to discuss the schedule for 1924, salary limits and a number of other matters.

President Martin named the following committees:

Schedules: A. J. Heinemann, New Orleans; A. G. Nash, Nashville; and Jack Corbett, Atlanta; constitution and rules: R. M. Weinmacker, Mobile; and C. R. Watkins, Memphis; resolutions: Strang Nicklin, Chattanooga and R. G. Allen, Little.

MAJOR LEAGUE STARS. BY RODNEY F. DUTCHER, United News Staff Correspondent.

Chicago, December 10.—Major and minor league stars Monday went into their annual holiday of secret sessions, trades, league politics, a number of rumors, a few trades, a number of definite moves, a couple of pitchers from Southern league clubs, but he refused to hand out any details.

Most of the bigger trades were still hanging fire when rival managers and scouts went into late night conferences.

Purchase by Connie Mack of Max Bishop, second sacker of the Baltimore Orioles, at a reported price of $25,000, was one of the deals that actually went through. This trade is expected to pave the way for a swap between Mack and Ty Cobb of Jimmy Dykes, Athletic second baseman, for Bobby Veach and Fothergill, outfielders, and Ray Francis and Rip Collins, pitchers.

Mack continued to demonstrate his aspirations for better things when he offered the St. Louis Lake City Coast league club $30,000 and the players for Outfielder Paul Strand, while Owner Jack Dunn, of Baltimore, sought to continue his best race by offering Joe Raley, his sensation shortstop, to the Chicago White Sox for $100,000. Frank Chance, "Peerless leader" of the Sox, who was in no ecstasies, failed to comment. In Bishop, Dunn sold the leading home-run hitter of the international circuit.

Deals, which would bring Roger Hornsby to the Chicago Cubs and send Eddie Collins to Washington, were not talked up much during the day, but many materialize.

"Kid" Gleason, veteran pilot of the White Sox and the only real manager in the majors now out of a job, ran into some tough luck when he took

St. Louis Peeks At Champ Jack

St. Louis, December 10.—Champion Jack Dempsey arrived today from Chicago for his scheduled exhibition bout tomorrow night. He expressed surprise at the action of Governor Hyde in attempting to stop the fistic program, saying his only interest in coming here was to stimulate interest in boxing, and adding that he had agreed to box three rounds with one of his trainers without remuneration.

"We have no intention of antagonizing Governor Hyde nor of attempting in any manner to evade the law of Missouri," the champion's secretary announced. Advice from Jefferson City stated that the attorney general was seeking a writ of prohibition from the supreme court to prevent Circuit Judge Frank Landwehr here from restraining the police from stopping the show.

HARDING LOVED HIS FELLOWMEN, THEY LOVED HIM

President Coolidge Pays Tribute to Predecessor in Office in Speech by Radio.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, December 10.—President Harding was eulogized by his successor in office, Calvin Coolidge, in an address broadcast tonight by radio, as one eminently fitted "to serve a distracted world in a difficult period of its history."

The president spoke in his study at the white house and his address, one of the features of the nation-wide observance of Harding Memorial week, was carried to the remotest parts of the country. Exceptional facilities for broadcasting were provided, all broadcasting stations being requested by the department of commerce to remain silent during the time Mr. Coolidge spoke.

Mr. Coolidge began his address with a reference to Leigh Hunt's poem, "Abou ben Adhem," in which an angel writes the name of him who loves his fellowman at the head of the list of "those who love the Lord."

"It will be hard to find a better picture than this of President Harding, the man we loved and mourn," said Mr. Coolidge, after reciting a verse of the poem. "He loved his fellowmen, and because they felt it and knew it, they loved and trusted him. His whole life, from the knee of that cherished mother who had an inspired faith in him, down to the day when a sorrowing world laid its tributes at his bier, was a continuing testimony of his devotion to them and to their faith in him."

"Some will say that such a sweet and gentle nature could only have found its setting and its opportunity for service in a strange and peculiar time. Perhaps they are right. Yet he came to the world's stage in an hour when it seemed set for other characters. The captains and the kings, the armies and the navies, the men who would have war, and the men who would have peace, had long dominated the scene. Where among them could place be made, could ear be found, for this kindly, gentle, gracious soul?"

Called Nations to Peace. "Yet he found his place. He caught the ear of a war-tired world. He called our country back to paths of peace, and gladly it came. He beckoned the nations who come and sit in council. He pointed them the way to peace. He set example of readiness to cast away the sword from the arm of right. He sought for men and nations a peace—the only true and lasting peace—based on justice and right. He stood first and firm for his own country, then for mankind. His sincerity and frankness won to his side those who sensed the great truth of human brotherhood. So he led the way to the monumental accomplishments of the Washington conference on limitation of armament.

"The same simplicity and directness marked his program in domestic affairs. His was the steady, strong, inspiring hand of guidance and helpfulness. It was never the mailed fist of compulsion. He knew that the greatest need of the world was peace with industry and production. He asked for these, and with them for thrift and the will to make good the losses that had been inflicted in the years of strife."

Was Sharply Criticized.

"He was criticized because his own country, under his leadership, did not move forward so fast as some wished. But when worn out by the struggle he had so bravely borne, he laid down the burden. His critics saw clearly that his leadership had accomplished what they had failed to do. They saw that prosperity smiled once more on a favored land. They saw that prosperity and material well-being were somehow strangely rare in other high places. They are the virtues that his modest, unassuming leadership had wrought for his country."

Under Load. "But he was not permitted to finish the task. He broke and went down under its load. In the hour of sorrow for his loss, men and women were moved to a broader charity, a relaxation of partisan excesses, a determination to be fair and moderate and reasonable. His life became the tragic sorrow of his end, a lesson in the value of simple and modest ways."

"We mourn him today and we shall mourn him so long as remembrance holds before us the promise of his science, his endurance, faith and Christian tolerance. These are rare virtues, too seldom found among the men who have the strength to rise to high places. They are the virtues that men need to seek and cultivate in these years of stress in the world. They point the way to salvation for men, for nations, for humanity itself. We may well hope that his example to his own countrymen and to the world may help greatly in bringing a spirit of charity, accord and true fraternity, whereby shall be lighted the lamp of understanding to show our feet into the paths of peace on earth, good will to men. We may well consider by what means we can show our appreciation and by what method we can best enshrine his memory."

Bessie Tift Girls Will Publish Paper Named for Teacher

Macon, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—The Bessie Tift "Sparks" will be a new organ of Bessie Tift college at Forsyth, it has been announced here, being named for Professor George M. Sparks, at present director of journalism at Mercer university.

The paper will be an eight-page one to be published quarterly by Bessie Tift students and will carry news of interest on the Forsyth campus. News from the Mercer Cluster, organ of the Mercer system of schools and colleges.

Mr. Sparks is the first instructor in journalism ever included on the faculty of the Forsyth college. He is former city editor of the Macon Telegraph, war correspondent for The Atlanta Constitution, Montgomery Advertiser, Washington Times and other well-known papers.

Miss Orth had been engaged as leading woman of the Forsyth play ers to succeed Miss Clara Joel two months ago but had been permitted to return to New York after spending one week here in rehearsals for "The Gold Diggers," and Miss Hazle Burgess was brought here to play the part when the comedy was at the Lyric theater. Members of the company and the Lyric management were Miss Orth only in a professional capacity and were not acquainted with her personal affairs, they said when informed of the suit.

Miss Orth, named by Mrs. Wilkinson as the third end of the triangle, was recently referred to by George M. Cohen as "the best dressed woman in the world."

Allen Arnold Dies Following Operation

Monroe, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—Monroe was shocked today at the news that Allen J. Arnold, 25, was dead at a hospital in St. Augustine, Fla., this morning, following an operation for appendicitis.

Mr. Arnold was a native of Monroe, coming from one of the state's most prominent families. He was a son of the late A. J. Arnold, one of the most successful bankers and business men of this section, and of Mrs. Eva Nowell Arnold, his mother, who survives him.

Mr. Arnold graduated from the city schools and from the University of Georgia, and about two years ago located at St. Augustine, where he has been singularly successful in the practice of law.

Mr. Arnold's mother and brother, Harry M. Arnold, were apprised of his serious condition by wire Friday and immediately left for St. Augustine. The body will be brought to Monroe Wednesday and the funeral and interment will occur here.

DIXIE CONGRESSMEN APPROVE GAME REFUGE

New York, December 10.—Southern members of congress whose opposition at the last session was said to have prevented passage of a national game refuge bill have been won over, delegates to the tenth national conference of the American game protection association, announced today. Conference officials said that the chief business of the meeting would be the organization of an active campaign to push the bill.

Several hundred delegates, chiefly state game wardens and their assistants spent the day discussing wild game propagation under federal and state auspices.

The Bank of England was organized by Sir John Sloane in 1788.

APPEAL OF WALTON IN SUPREME COURT

Washington, December 10.—The appeal of former Governor Walton, of Oklahoma, from dismissal of his injunction suit to prevent the Oklahoma house of representatives from proceeding with his impeachment case was filed today in the supreme court. When the case may be reached is uncertain.

If an appeal is granted, the case will bring up for review the highest court one of the bitterest controversies that has shaken the government of any state in years.

The injunction suit was begun by Mr. Walton as a part of his fight against the Ku Klux Klan, which culminated in his removal as governor. The suit was dismissed last month by Federal District Judge Cotten, who decided that it involved political and not constitutional questions.

In entering the appeal counsel for the former governor merely filed the record of the case in the lower courts. Arguments are not admissible under the practice of the supreme court until after there has been a decision as to whether the case should be reviewed or thrown out without hearing.

League Council Discusses Plan To Get Arms Pact

Paris, December 10.—The United States and its relation to the league of nations activities formed the chief theme of discussion at today's public session here of the league council. Lord Robert Cecil of Great Britain, M. Hanotaux of France and Hjalmar Branting of Sweden, all participated in the discussion, which arose over the decision to invite the Washington government's collaboration in a league commission for the preparation of a convention replacing the St. Germain treaty for the control of international traffic in arms.

The United States as well as some other countries, refused to adhere to the St. Germain treaty and the problem before the league is to find a manner of substituting the treaty, which will assure the support of the leading powers especially America.

ACTRESS NAMED AS CORRESPONDENT IN CHATHAM SUIT

Savannah, Ga., December 10.—Naming Miss Louise Orth, co-star with George M. Cohen in "Madeline" of the movie as co-respondent, Mrs. Charles S. Wilkinson, wife of the president of the Wilkinson Machine company, and socially prominent, has filed a grand divorce bill against her husband, asking temporary and permanent alimony.

Disclosures made in the bill filed today were sensational. In naming Miss Orth as one and the principal "other women," Mrs. Wilkinson declares her husband maintains an apartment in New York for Miss Orth at the average monthly cost of $150.

In addition, she says her husband sold their palatial home here, stating he planned to build another residence, but the money went to the woman.

In alleging cruel treatment, Mrs. Wilkinson charges her husband openly abused her in a fashionable hotel restaurant in Baltimore. Mrs. Wilkinson cites instances where she had advanced sums of money for her husband's business.

Miss Orth, named by Mrs. Wilkinson as the third end of the triangle, was recently referred to by George M. Cohen as "the best dressed woman in the world."

ALTITUDE RECORD CLAIMED BY SWEDEN

Stockholm, December 10.—S. A. Flyg, captain in the Swedish navy, who in June, 1922, attained an altitude of 5,871 meters in a hydro airplane with one passenger, will be recognized by the Swedish aero club as holder of the world's altitude record for a hydroplane, it was announced today. The flight took place under supervision and only through an oversight, it was explained, has the record remained unclaimed until now.

Captain Flyg's mark exceeds by 336 meters the altitude attained by Jean La Porte, the French aviator, on December 1.

HOLLOMON TO SPEAK IN CUTHBERT TONIGHT

Cuthbert, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—James A. Hollomon, associate editor of The Atlanta Constitution, will be the principal speaker at a special meeting and banquet of the Randolph County Advertising club to be held here Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock.

Members of the Randolph County Advertising club, whose efforts have already brought Randolph county forward as one of the growing and progressive counties in the state, will outline further plans for the betterment of the county at the meeting Tuesday.

Bankers, business men, farmers and other leaders in the county will be present at the meeting. G. H. Glaves is president of the Randolph County Advertising club; W. S. McWilliams, vice president, and D. L. Smith, treasurer.

KENTUCKY GIRL WINS FIRESTONE CONTEST

Washington, December 10.—Miss Dorothy Louise Roberts, a high school girl of Harlan, Ky., is the winner of the H. S. Firestone four-year university scholarship for the best essay in the fourth annual good roads essay contest, the highway education board announced tonight. More than 150,000 high school students sought the prize.

General Foreman Outlines Continental Idea of Help America Should Give.

Chicago, December 10.—What European countries want most from the United States is help to secure their own commercial advancement, General Milton J. Foreman told a meeting of the University of Michigan alumni club today. He based his observations on two trips to Europe since the war, the latest made last summer.

"When the war ended," he said, "the brotherhood of the allied forces was such that it did not seem possible for it to break. Our first thought was: 'This ends war.' But immediately economic rivalries, national aggrandizement, and greed broke out. The French thought their place in the sun was interfered with by England. The French believed they were destined to be the great industrial nation of Europe. In an interview at which I was present, M. Briand said it was the duty of America to step in and be the guardian of the world."

"I asked him what would happen if the other fellow did not think one of our acts of guardianship was justice."

"Ah," he replied, "then it is for America to enforce justice." High British officials to whom he talked last summer, General Foreman said, were not so outspoken as the French, but they expressed a similar undercurrent of thought that the dominating people of the world must take upon themselves the duty of maintaining the peace, and that it was needful to have a close association of the leading English-speaking nations. He added:

"Lord Haig said: 'You can not stay out. It is necessary to have your co-operation to establish the rule of justice and right.' 'I asked: 'How if the other fellow doesn't agree with our justice and right?'"

"Ah," he must be compelled by moral power," was the reply. General Foreman said that European nations sacrificed immediately after the war the things for which they had fought and stand glaring at one another, and he added:

"It is to that party that we are invited."

COOLIDGE MAY FREE WAR-LAW PRISONERS

Washington, December 10.—Representative Berger, socialist, Wisconsin, after a conference today with President Coolidge, said he had reason to believe that all of the 32 imprisoned violators of war laws would be granted amnesty before Christmas by the president.

The Wisconsin representative called at the White House to present a personal appeal for amnesty for President Coolidge this week will receive from the department of justice the report of the special committee of three which he designated a month ago to inquire into the general question of release of war-law violators. The report will be accompanied by a outline of the views of the department of justice. While it has been held in closest secrecy, the feeling has existed for several days among those appealing for amnesty that the committee, consisting of Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war; Major General James C. Harbord, retired, and Bishop Brent of the Episcopal church, had reported favorably upon the question of amnesty.

COOLIDGE APPOINTS NEW ORLEANS NEGRO

Washington, December 10.—The name of Walter L. Cohen, New Orleans negro republican leader, was sent to the senate today by President Coolidge to be controller of customs of the New Orleans district despite a protest made to him a few hours previous by the two Louisiana senators. The protest was made by Senators Russell and Bruzard democrats, Louisiana, against reappointment of Cohen, negro republican leader, who now is serving as controller of the Port of New Orleans.

The Cohen case is one of the most troublesome personnel matters with which Coolidge has had to deal, Cohen's nomination was rejected by the senate last February, but President Harding gave him a recess appointment.

COOLIDGE ASKED WHY ENGRAVING MEN WERE FIRED

Washington, December 10.—President Coolidge would be asked in a resolution offered today by Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, to report to the senate the reasons why the twenty-eight officers and employees of the bureau of engraving were dismissed in March, 1922.

Senator Caraway sought immediate consideration by the senate, but Senator Sterling, republican, South Dakota, objected.

CITY CHIEF IS SHOT WHILE HUNTING NEGRO

Elizabeth City, N. C., December 10. John Bray, city manager of Elizabeth City, was accidentally shot last night while engaged with a posse in searching for Leroy White, a negro, wanted on charges of committing five highway robberies in the last four days and shooting one man. Manager Bray received a charge of buckshot in his shoulder when he attempted to take a shotgun out of an automobile.

BRUNSWICK SOLICITOR RACE IS WARMING UP

Brunswick, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—Three candidates for solicitor general of the Brunswick circuit are in the field, and while none of them have issued their formal announcements, they have let it be known to their friends that they are candidates; in fact they have already started out to make this one of the liveliest contests to be settled at the state primary next year.

The candidates are Alvin Sellers, the incumbent, who up to a few days ago made Baxley, Appling county, his home, but who has just taken up his residence in Brunswick; W. B. Gibbs, of Jessup, solicitor of the city court of Jessup, and Newton Gaskin, of Haulbrook, Jeff Davis county.

The counties composing the Brunswick circuit are Appling, Camden, Jeff Davis, Glynn and Wayne, therefore it appears that three out of the five will have candidates in the race for solicitor and Glynn and Camden will likely be the battling ground, as these are the only two counties not previously favorite sons.

HARRIS INTRODUCES FIVE SPECIAL BILLS

Washington, December 10.—(Special.)—Special bills introduced Monday by Senator W. J. Harris were: Payment of damages to Mrs. Ethel Williams, of Atlanta, for personal injuries by a motorcycle at Camp Gordon.

Hospital Group Will Meet.

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Georgia Baptist hospital will hold its regular meeting Friday, December 14, at 10:30 o'clock at the hospital. Everyone interested in this work is earnestly invited to attend.

At this meeting will be present the members of this committee who will bring donations of books, magazines, educational pictures and other special articles which have been requested, as in one instance, footballs. The county school teachers and other leaders in educational work will be special honor guests.

Mrs. Earl Powell is chairman of the educational department and is conducting the program for education week. A luncheon will follow the program.

Mrs. Walker will visit Governor Walker's sister, Mrs. W. H. Field, in Cartersville.

Mrs. Richard Sawtell Is Hostess.

Miss Eloise Allen, fete bride-elect, was the central figure at an elaborate buffet luncheon entertained Monday by Mrs. Richard Sawtell at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Green, on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Pink Columbia roses, phytostegia and feathery ferns were used in the decorative arrangement throughout the reception rooms. In the center of the luncheon table was a silver basket of pink roses and ferns, while candles in silver holders held silver candlesticks holding lavender tapers and comports of lavender and pink mints, enlashed with tiny Dresden shaded flowers.

Mrs. Green assisted her daughter in entertaining.

Mrs. Sawtell was gowned in black satin, trimmed in ermine.

Miss Allen wore brown velvet with gold trimmings.

The guests were Miss Allen, Mrs. Walter Wellborn, Mrs. Bert Harless, Mrs. Robert Goodhart, Mrs. John Knox, Mrs. Elwyn Tomlinson, Mrs. Wayne Martin, Mrs. De Sales Harrison, Mrs. Waldo Mallory, Mrs. Hugh T. Mrs. Lella A. Dillard, the state president; Mrs. T. O. Hathcock, president of the fifth district; and Mrs. J. P. Stevenson, president of the Piedmont union, will receive, assisted by the officers of other local organizations.

There will be a delightful program of music and readings. Mrs. George H. Sims and Mrs. F. K. Frye will sing a duet: "It's In the Constitution and It's There to Stay," the celebrated new song by J. G. Bailey, of Philadelphia.

David Warner, talented ten-year-old son of Mrs. H. L. Warner, of Hapeville, will render a violin solo.

Frances Fry will read "A Bow of Ribbon White," and Miss Lois Lamb will play a group of piano numbers.

Members in the city who have not yet united with local unions, and all visiting members, are invited. Decatur, College Park, East Point, Hapeville and Red Oak unions are invited.

Engagement Is Of Interest.

Americus, Ga., December 10.—A wedding engagement of wide interest here is that of Miss Nettie Lou Howard and Sherrod Horne, both members of prominent Sumter county families. The marriage, which will be solemnized at an early date, will be a quiet one, taking place at the home of the bride's parents in the quaint little city of Cobb, 20 miles south of Americus, in the Union High school community. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Howard, of Cobb. Mr. Horne is a son of C. S. S. Horne, a resident of this community, and during several years past has been engaged in farming in the Chambliss district. Following their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Horne will go to reside upon the beautiful Horne plantation near Americus.

Debutantes Are Tendered Luncheon.

Miss Margaret White entertained the members of the Debutante club at a delightful luncheon Monday at the Capital City club.

The luncheon table was arranged in a private room of the club and was overlaid with a handsome lace cloth. In the center was a silver basket of Killarney roses. Silver candlesticks holding pink tapers and comports of the bonbons were placed at intervals. The place cards were hand-decorated figures of debutantes.

Miss White was gowned in panne velvet outlined in Chinese blue, and trimmed with fur. She wore a black velvet hat with lace.

Misses Jane and Betty Davison To Be Central Figures at Tea

Mrs. Beaumont Davison has issued invitations to a large afternoon reception, at which she will entertain in compliment to her lovely young school girl daughters, Misses Jane and Betty Davison, Thursday, December 20, at her home in the Pershing Point apartments.

The Misses Davison will arrive December 18 from Raleigh, N. C., where they have been attending school at St. Mary's, and will be popular figures at many elaborate parties to be given for the younger social set during the Christmas holiday season.

Assisting the honor guests in entertaining will be a group of charming young girls, including Misses Sarah Fischer, Julianne Hagan, Sullin Johnson, Martha Maddox, Adeline Winston, Margaret Maddox, Mary Wellborn and Frances Floyd.

One evening during Christmas week Mrs. Davison will entertain at a supper-party in compliment to her attractive daughters.

Bride-Elect Is Complimented.

Miss Virginia Walker, charming bride-elect, was the recipient of a delightful compliment Monday when Miss Margaret Vaughan entertained for her at a bridge-tee at her home on East Fourteenth street.

Foliage plants and quantities of chrysanthemums were used throughout the room. The prizes were lingerie and French perfume. Tea was served following the game at the individual tables.

Mrs. James Oscar Vaughan assisted in entertaining.

Miss Vaughan was gowned in black satin.

Miss Walker wore orange satin brocaded in silver.

The guests on this occasion were Miss Leila Ponder, Miss Verice Mayson, Miss Jeanne Lambdin, Miss Henrietta Davis, Miss Margaret Scarborough, of Columbus, Ga.; Miss Marie Porter, Mrs. J. Lee Groves, Jr., Mrs. Morgan Wayne, Mrs. Boykin Pennington, Mrs. Julian Buff, Mrs. Edgar Hunnifut, Mrs. Cleve Symmes and Mrs. Stratton Hard.

Luncheon at Standard Club.

On account of illness, Mrs. Isaac Mendes, of Savannah, will be unable to speak at the good fellowship luncheon on December 12 at the Standard club. The Temple Sisterhood and Council of Jewish Women were fortunate in securing Mrs. Rhoda Kaufman of the welfare board as speaker for this memorable occasion and she has a worth while message to impart.

Enrico Liede and Solon Druckenmiller are the musical artists on the program and the luncheon promises to be one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season. Every woman affiliated with a Jewish organization is cordially invited to attend this luncheon.

Literature Class To Entertain.

The class in literature of the Atlanta Woman's Club, Mrs. D. F. Stevenson, chairman, will give a card party in the Banquet hall of the club, Tuesday, December 11 at 3 o'clock; tables to be 82 each.

The card party is being sponsored by Mrs. Lucien Harris, divisional chairman of current events. Mrs. Charles E. Robertson, divisional chairman of speakers, and Mrs. Irma Grey Riddle, chairman of drives for the literature class, with the assistance of each member of the class.

All departments of the club are requested to attend the card party and bring their friends who are not members of the club. Each player is asked to bring cards and pencils.

Parlor Sale of Christmas Novelties.

A parlor sale will be given by the Woman's auxiliary of Westminster Presbyterian church in the parlor of the church, corner Ponce de Leon and North Boulevard, on Tuesday, December 11, the sale opening at 10:30 a. m. and closing at 12:30 p. m. for Christmas gifts, with prices moderate.

Kirkwood League Plants Trees.

Despite the inclemency of the weather on Tuesday, December 4, there were a goodly number of members who attended the regular meeting of the Civic League. Mrs. R. S. Goulden, the treasurer, has not missed a meeting in three years. Such faithfulness is sure to bear good fruit.

Mrs. Joseph Smith, the president, opened the meeting with prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted without correction. The treasurer gave a most encouraging report of the league's financial standing of the splendid success of the bazaar which was held on December 1.

The department of applied education announced that Miss Whitehead would conduct a class in interior decoration and basketry, beginning about the first of February. Also that any wishing to join the next milliner's class, which will be conducted by Mrs. Bailey, should confer with Miss Nellie Emery, phone Decatur 1096-J.

The civic chairman, Mrs. A. I. Brannan, announces that Miss Gussie Bremer, the principal, would arrange a program for Arbor day and the league will furnish and assist in planting trees on this school ground. Owing to the unsettled weather the day for planting the trees will be announced later.

It was unanimously voted to send a donation to the City Federation for the memorial station which they are building for the boys in front of Hospital Forty-eight. Mrs. Hess then gave a report of the last meeting of the City Federation, after which the meeting adjourned.

Players Are Tendered Supper.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Wing entertained at a buffet supper Sunday evening at their home Chokers in honor of the cast of "Euter Madam".

Composing the cast are Miss Grace Stephens, Newton C. Wing, Hunter C. Smith, T. R. Waggoner, Miss Stella Meadow, Miss Helen Hargraves, Wallace Rideout, Byron Warner, R. H. Robinson, Mrs. Enrico Liede, Miss Mary Anderson, director.

Invited to meet the honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Raymond, Miss Boots Wooster, Mr. and Mrs. Fuzzy Woodruff, W. B. Atkinson, Enrico Liede, Hale Williams, Hunter C. Smith, Mrs. M. K. Cuthorne, and Miss Adele Dunbar.

Fort McPherson Social News.

The ladies bridge club of Fort McPherson met at the Officers club at two o'clock on Monday afternoon.

The regular tea dance took place at 4:30 at the Officers' dances on Monday afternoon. These dances are regular weekly social features and many guests are always present.

Captain and Mrs. V. N. Meddis and their daughter, Billie, left Monday for their new station at Washington. D. C. Captain Meddis has been stationed at Fort McPherson, Ga., for several years, and goes for station at the Walter Reed hospital.

Colonel and Mrs. E. E. Haskell entertained at dinner on Saturday evening at their quarters in Fort McPherson in a farewell complement to Captain and Mrs. Meddis, who leave on Monday for their new home in Washington.

Mrs. James Regan and Mrs. Robert Lyle will be hostess at a large bridge party on Friday afternoon.

STARVED HEARTS

BY MILDRED BARBOUR

Lane was as complacent as the cat which has just dined off the canary. He felt that the world was good. A gracious, intelligent, reasonably handsome woman was his for the asking. He could have liked more delicate beauty, a little less average dupois, more youth, but one could not have everything, he reflected. Youth would have meant less intelligence and, after all, Viola Maitland was still young enough to be the mother of children. And what children they would be with such parents to pass on to them the sum of their combined intellects! Nearly two years had elapsed since he had become a widower. It was seemingly that he should take unto himself another wife.

In this benighted mood he left his office one afternoon to find an unexpected call upon his affections.

She was at home, the maid said, who answered his ring, but engaged.

"Don't disturb her by announcing me," Lane told the girl. "I will wait here in the living room until she is free."

He settled himself in a deep chair with a magazine picked up at random.

"Well, old girl," said a voice, which he had never heard before, "I'll be off now. Glad I dropped in to hear the good news. I date say that by the next time I see you, you'll be rolling in filthy lucre."

His affiance's low laugh reminded Lane for the first time of the complacent purr of a cat.

"You've said it! And believe me, it is some roll. The Lane millions haven't a show, once I get my fingers on them!"

"And the old boy fell easily, eh?" laughed the other.

"Easy isn't the word," confided Miss Maitland. "It was a walkover."

The older they are, the harder they fall, is no idle axiom.

"Going to lecture, Vi, after you're married?" enquired the other mockingly.

"Not I! The platform has served its purpose. I'll be too busy spending Lane's money from now on."

"When's the wedding?"

His fiancée laughed again.

"As soon as I, with proper coy reluctance, decide its time to cash in. It won't hurt to play him a little bit longer. Avoids suspicion, you know."

"I've got to get rid of that niece of his first. And there's a shrewd creature by the name of Orway who's got to be watched. There are moments when I'm afraid she's on to them."

"Heigh-ho!" yawned the other. "It's a great game. But I'll have to hand it to you. Don't forget me when your ship comes in. I'll like to dabble a bit in the Lane fortune myself."

"Goodbye, old dear. Send me a bid to the obsequies." . . .

Before the boudoir door could open, Lane was in the hall, had reclaimed his hat and stick without the maid's knowledge and let himself out the front door.

For the first time in his experience, fear gripped him by the throat. Fear of the terrible woman who held him in her power.

The thought of how nearly he had escaped marriage to her made him shudder.

But had he escaped? Was there any escape from such a creature? Her sort would fight. The determination with which she had pursued him, captured him, argued well for her ability to hold him to his bargain.

She had played her cards to force him into marriage. It was unlikely that she would quit the game while she still held trump.

He wouldn't go through with it, he told himself savagely, as he strode along through the dusk. Let her do her worst, she couldn't force him into marriage.

But what then? What fiendish alternative would she take?

He had visions of scandal, publicity, the sordid notoriety of the courts, the derisive laughter of the many who had caused to hate him. . . . This would happen to him, who had been secure throughout all his triumphant career.

He groaned aloud in his anguish of spirit.

Where could he turn for help, for counsel, for comfort? . . .

He smiled grimly, as he realized that he, Lane, the arrogant, self-sufficient, had been brought to this! But like a healing touch came the thought of one who had never failed him in moments of distress.

He turned about and set out for Ann Orway's.

The Lady of Pentlands

BY ELIZABETH JORDAN

When they were again in the Sterling home Anne gave her guest time to change into a house gown and then impatiently tapped at her door.

"Betty's fright yesterday drove everything else out of my mind," she admitted as she entered Valerie's sitting room. "But of course you know I'm simply dying to hear what position B. G. offered you."

From a window seat overlooking Central park Valerie smiled up at her.

"Sit down," she invited. "Take a comfy chair and pile in lots of cushions. You'll need them."

"O," Anne spoke dubiously, but obeyed by tucking herself into a winged chair and resting her slippered feet on a cushion. "Isn't it heavenly to be home after that terrible place?" she asked with a deep breath of relaxation.

Valerie took the obvious opening.

"I'm sorry you feel that way about it," she said. "You see, I'm going to live there!"

"O Valerie!" Anne Sterling's voice was a wail. "Then you've taken it—whatever it is!"

"Yes," Valerie said, "I've taken it. You added, 'It's rather overwhelming. You won't like it. But—well, it's settled.'"

"Which means, I suppose," Anne dryly interpreted, "that the protests of a loving friend are not in order. As her companion made no reply to this, she went on. 'Well—what is it?'"

Valerie Knight was a young person of courage and briskness of action. The more difficult the hurdle before her, the more promptly she took it. But now she balked and sidestepped, and Anne, understanding her better than she realized, waited with growing forebodings.

"You saw the condition of things at Pentlands," Valerie began, at last. "Yes. Chaos and something worse."

"Mr. Gordon has a theory that he needs a certain kind of help," the guest stumbled on—"the kind only a certain type of woman can give him."

"Valerie Knight," Anne half rose from her chair. "You're not telling me that B. G. wants you to come there as a woman detective?"

That broke the tension. Valerie laughed out, and Anne, realizing with quick relief the absurdity of the suggestion, smiled in sympathy. On the return wave of amused understanding her guest sent the next message.

"No, he wants me to be his wife."

She saw the muscles of Anne's plain face tighten in amazement, holding the smile where it was. Then, under her next words, she saw them slowly relax, while her friend's expression changed to a look of stupefaction.

"O, in name only," she hurried on. "Like a heroine of fiction, you know. He is to keep his promise and I'm to be the feminine head of his household—super-governess, super-housekeeper, in short, superwoman!"

"Valerie!" Anne had breath only to whisper the word. "He didn't dare."

"O, yes, he did. And I've accepted his offer. Don't lose sight of that. It's rather important."

Anne rose slowly to her feet, as if from an impulse to meet this issue standing.

"You didn't!" she muttered. "You can't!"

"O, yes I did. And I can." Suddenly Valerie changed her tone. "If you are going to take it like that, Anne, you will make it terribly hard for me."

The reminder was like a cool hand on a hot forehead. Anne sat down and dazedly looked at her.

"To quote your friend B. G., it is 'the stable business' proposition. I can't tell you how often he repeated those words, or how fervently he underlined them. But I can tell you why I accepted his offer—and should like to make that clear."

"Please do," Anne's voice was still very low. She was looking past her old schoolmate, as if for some reason she could not look at her.

"My position," Valerie went on, "is simply a business proposition. Mr. Gordon has offered me a job. I like that homely word. It implies that there is work to be done. And from what you and I have seen at Pentlands we can hardly doubt that there is work there—big work, work worth doing. Can we not?"

Anne shook her head.

"No," she said, "I suppose you can't."

"He has offered me a good salary—that, of course, is what it amounts to. It insures my future; but that's not the important point. I'll tell you all the details later. I'm now wanting you to understand why I accept his offer."

BAPTISTS IN MACON FOR CONVENTION

Macon, Ga., December 10.—(Special.)—As a prelude to the annual Georgia Baptist convention, which opens here tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, Dr. E. C. Dargan, of Nashville, Tenn., former Macon pastor, and F. H. Etheridge, of Atlanta, who recently gave Mercer university $100,000, addressed the pastor-layman conference tonight at the First Baptist church. The joint conference will continue in session until noon tomorrow.

More than 500 delegates are expected in Macon by noon tomorrow for the opening of the 102nd annual convention, sessions will be held at the First Baptist church, with Dr. John D. Mell, who has served as president for the last twelve years, presiding.

Election of officers and appointment of committees will follow a short devotional service. Dr. Mell, president, and Dr. D. B. Ragdale, who has served as secretary for twenty-seven years, are expected to be re-elected. Four new vice presidents will be chosen to succeed J. H. Carmichael, of Jackson; C. D. Graves, of Dublin; John B. Payne, of Blue Ridge, and Governor Clifford Walker, of Monroe.

The other officers are Dr. E. J. Forrester, of Spartanburg, and Rev. W. T. Granada, of Statesboro, assistant secretaries.

Tomorrow night's session will be held in the Grand theater and the chief topic will be Mercer university.

Wednesday morning's topic will be education, urging the participation of the boards in the afternoon and the $75,000,000 campaign at night.

Thursday's sessions will be devoted to missions, benevolence and other matters.

The most important matter to face the convention will be the allotment of funds of the next general campaign. The $75,000,000 campaign ends November 30, 1924 and the tentative plans for the next drive are to be discussed.

Among other matters will be the question of abolishing the holding of Mercer university and Bowie (Tenn.) college. Friends of the two institutions have requested the change, claiming the present arrangement prevents certain benefits to which they would otherwise be entitled. A committee will make recommendations relative to the future policy of the twelve secondary schools of the Mercer university system.

Discuss Fund Allotment.

Mr. and Mrs. Dinkler Complimented Guests With Dinner Party

Mrs. Lucile Gaston Jordan, of Birmingham, Ala., and Wilson Lawrence, of London, England, who are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Carling Dinkler at their home on Peachtree road, are being complimented with a number of delightful social affairs during their visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Dinkler entertained Monday evening at dinner at the Capital City club in honor of their guests.

The beautifully appointed table placed in the gray room of the club was overlaid with a cover of filet lace and Madeira embroidery. A handsome silver basket filled with pink roses formed the central decoration. Silver candlesticks holding unshaded pink tapers were placed at intervals. The guests places were marked by dainty hand-decorated cards.

Covers were placed for twelve. After dinner Mr. and Mrs. Dinkler entertained the guests at bridge.

Study Class Will Meet.

There will be a meeting of the study class of the American Association of University Women at 8:45 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, December 12, at the City club. Miss Woodward will lead the discussion of the "Life of Henry Adams."

Noted Lecturer To Appear Here.

The Frank Swinnerton lecture which was to have been given this evening has been postponed until Wednesday evening, December 12, on account of conflict with appearance of Louis Graneur, noted French baritone.

The lecture will take place at 8 o'clock in the Atlanta Woman's club auditorium.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

Dance at Segado's Wednesday.

Final arrangements have been completed for the special dance to be given at Segado's hall on Wednesday evening, December 12.

A special committee has been appointed for entertainment and a very enjoyable evening is promised. Members of the fraternities and of the various dance clubs are invited.

The chaperons include Mr. and Mrs. Ed Coolidge and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Johnson.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

STRING BEANS.
Add a sprig of mint to string beans while they are cooking. This gives an unusual flavor to the beans.

EASY ON THE RIGHT SIDE.
Beat carpets heavily on the wrong side and lightly on the right side. The texture may be spoiled with too hard a beating on the right side.

IF WINTER COMES.
When winter winds begin to blow remember that many a torn sheet and tablecloth can be saved if both ends are hung well over the line and securely pinned.

TO WASH OVERALLS.
The only successful way of washing overalls and still keeping one's good disposition is to lay them on the washboard, soap them and scrub vigorously with a scrub brush.

SODA STRAWS.
A bundle of straws, such as used at soda fountains, are convenient and sanitary to feed liquids to the sick child. They can be burned after using and there is no danger of breaking as with glass tubes. Children will oftentimes take nourishment through a fascinating straw than if just given to them in a glass or cup.

cording secretary, and Mrs. W. D. Lamar, parliamentarian.

A feature of the meeting was the presentation to Mrs. Land, on behalf of the business men of Macon of an exquisite solid silver vase on a carved mahogany stand with a gold flower stem container. The gift was in recognition of Mrs. Land's cooperation as president of the federation.

Eleventh Ward School Formed.

Much enthusiasm in the activities of the Atlanta League of Women voters is being manifested by the new class of the Eleventh Ward school voters, which was formed last week on Friday afternoon in the J. F.

Faith school house, under the direction of Mrs. Milton Walker.

Mrs. Harry Chamberlain, state president of the league, and Mrs. Sanford Gay, president of the city league, addressed the class. Their talks were inspiring and entertaining. Miss Katherine Koch, chairman of the ward for the league, announces that the class gives promise of being one of the largest and most successful in the entire ward. It is due to her efforts that the ward is doing so much active work.

Special Dance At Roseland.

Hearing Music in New York

"THE FEMALE OF THE SPECIES"

By Marguerite Bartholomew

The passing of Theresa Carpeno in 1916 marked the death of the most conspicuous figure among women pianists of all time. Others may have surpassed her in single attributes, but no one has represented so completely the embodiment of all pianistic virtues as she. Her beauty, her queenly and gracious stage presence, her simplicity, the tremendous scope of her artistry will ever be cherished in glowing remembrance by all who were privileged to hear her.

It would be difficult to claim that any one of the present crop of concert celebrities could measure completely to the standard maintained by Mrs. Carpeno throughout her career. There are among them, however, certain potent personalities whose art is individual and outstanding, and of these several have been heard in New York during the present season.

Probably foremost among them is a young English woman, Myra Hess by name, whose initial concert at Aeolian Hall took place October 24 and a later appearance by general request on November 17.

Although she is a favorite with the most critical of New York's musical elite, the extraordinary merit of her work does not seem to be recognized fully throughout the country.

In appearance a stately brunette, whose fine dark eyes reflect the poetic tenderness, the warmth, the fire, the emotional intensity of her musical nature. One might easily venture to assert that the mantle of the immortal Clara Schumann has fallen upon the shoulders of this English girl, in so many respects does her remarkable musicianship resemble that of the illustrious predecessor.

Her first program featured four preludes and fugues from Bach's

Junior League Girls Rendering Valuable Service By Making Braille Books for Blinded War Veterans

BY MARGARET WHITMAN.

To Miss Marian Stearns, of the Junior League of Atlanta, and the Atlanta Chapter of the American Red Cross, belongs the distinction of organizing in the south the initial and only class in the Braille method of bookmaking.

This class is under the supervision of Mrs. Adelaide H. Carson of Philadelphia, Pa., who as an instructor is acquainted with the best, most thorough, and altogether interesting method of transcribing. The members of the class are Junior League girls and include: Misses Marian Stearns, Alice Stearns, Marian Darrah, Jean Darrah, Henrietta Tupper, Janet Evans, Caroline Nicolson, Edgard Horton, Mrs. Hunter Muse, Mrs. De Sales Harrison, Mrs. Philip Wilcox, Mrs. Glenn Ryman, Mrs. Edwin Peeples, Mrs. Waldo Mallory, Mrs. William Grant, Mrs. Chester Boote, Mrs. Helen Harrison, Mrs. Mary Baker, Mrs. Glenn Ryman, Mrs. Edwin Peeples, Mrs. Waldo Mallory, Mrs. William Grant, Mrs. Chester Boote, Mrs. Helen Harrison, Mrs. Mary Baker.

Because of the unusually exacting nature of the Braille work, which consists of concise perforations which from a code of characters not unlike the Morse telegraphic code, the students of the system are required to pass a severe test of tests before they are finally permitted to begin actual transcription.

Three separate examinations are given for proficiency and accuracy before one is declared eligible for the work. The last of the three consists of a specimen translation of fifty pages, which must be done to the satisfaction of the governmental authorities at Braille headquarters in Washington, D. C., who supervise the work.

So far, three of the six lessons in the course have been completed by the class here. They are held every Wednesday morning at the Red Cross headquarters on Ivy street from 10 till 11 o'clock, and in the absence of Mrs. Carson, who will not be able to remain in Atlanta until the completion of the course, Miss Jean Darrah, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. D. B. Darrah, of Fort McPherson, who recently came to Atlanta with her parents for residence from Washington, D. C., will be in charge. Miss Darrah as a member of the Junior League in Washington completed the course there and having transcribed several books since that time is now perfectly familiar with the methods of translating and teaching Braille.

Perhaps the most important feature of Braille work is the fact that it may be produced in three ways. It may be written by hand, one dot at a time, with a slate and stylus; it may be produced on a Braille writer where an entire character can be made at a single stroke; or it may be embossed on brass plates from which many paper impressions can be made with a printing press. The last is of course the best way, but is at the same time very expensive, and for this reason the books have to be reproduced by hand, unless the authors of the books furnish the plates.

The library for the blind at Evergreen, the government hospital near Baltimore, Md., contains nearly 1,500 Braille books, and the majority of these are confined chiefly to history, current events and other more weighty topics, not at all calculated to while away tedious hours for a young man blinded and not accustomed to the cruel penalties of blindness.

To the blind are denied the same pastimes as are forbidden those of the sighted. And further, the blind are forever cut off from the pleasure of seeing beauty and its sweetest manifestation, happiness and sympathy in the faces of friends.

But books! They open to all the world a new and Elysian field of delight. This work being done in Atlanta, which, in effect, puts eyes into the sensitive finger-tips of the blind is a rare blessing to these heroes who gave so much.

For them it will open vistas of pleasure, and will be a generous addition to the all-too-small repayment a nation can make or their sacrifice.

well-tempered Clavier, one of Beethoven's late sonatas, op. 110, and a most interesting modern sonata by Bax, a Russian composer; her second program brought a repetition of the Bach's Chopin B flat minor sonata, a group of Debussy and two charming selections from Albeniz's "Iberia."

Miss Hess is essentially an interpretative talent, of unusual depth and poetic insight; her work is characterized by fine balance and sense of proportion, absolute sincerity and an utter lack of sensationalism, but technically and emotionally adequate to the most rigorous demands of "Iberia."

Her Bach proved an eloquent refutation of the mistaken fallacy that metrical precision and contrapuntal scheme are the only valuable lessons to be gleaned from the great master's compositions. Her Chopin was imbued with the delicate and sensitive touch of the great Polish pianist, and her performance of the Chopin's "No. 11" was performed with a rare comprehension of its intrinsic depth and beauty, the modern and lighter numbers of her program were equally convincing in their artistic and imaginative appeal.

Mme. Ely Ney, of Cologne, Germany, whose husband Willem van Hoogstraaten is the forceful and inspiring conductor of the New York Philharmonic orchestra, is by no means content to bask in the reflected glory of her husband's achievements.

Of a series of four important programs announced in the bulletin of Aeolian Hall by her management this winter, she has already given two, and redoubt immeasurably to the glory and renown of her pianistic genius.

Her first program brought selections by Bach, Rameau-Godowsky, Chopin, the G major Sonata by Tchaikowski, a novel and rarely does it appear on concert programs: Polonaise and Valse-Triste by MacDowell, Soiree de Vienne by Schubert-Liszt and Rhapsodie No. 14 by Liszt. It was a program well calculated to exploit the diverse powers of this versatile pianist.

Of a series of four important programs announced in the bulletin of Aeolian Hall by her management this winter, she has already given two, and redoubt immeasurably to the glory and renown of her pianistic genius.

Her second recital was an all Brahms program, and none but a universally acclaimed pianist, like the Temple of Brahms would venture upon a task so formidable. But Ely Ney reveals in Brahms, fathoming his deepest moods with remarkable lucidity, her technique admirably suited to his heavy orchestral style, and portraying exquisitely the delicate and imaginative element of his lighter vein.

The Waltzes, op. 39, were delightfully graceful and sparkling and well contrasted by their changing colors and rhythms, and in the F minor Sonata her conception was glowing and unsurpassed.

Ethel Leginska.

Another pianist inclined toward the powerful masculine type of performance is Ethel Leginska, well-known English pianist, who appeared before a large and enthusiastic audience at Carnegie Hall, the evening of November 7.

Miss Leginska has been devoting much time during the past three years to teaching and composing, and her concert appearances have been comparatively rare.

On the above occasion her interpretation of Beethoven's Sonata op. 26 was not as spontaneous and inspired as I recall her matchless rendition of the Waldstein Sonata formerly in Atlanta to have been the choice of her numbers were inclined to be erratic and unaccountable to on the whole, it was a typical Leginska program, full of vividly contrasting lights and shadows, often vehement and abrupt, but always effective and interesting.

Dr. Sherwood Eddy Speaks At Meeting of Woman's Club

"Let America play her part in the moral leadership of the world," was the sense of a stirring address by Dr. Sherwood Eddy, noted lecturer and author, at the Atlanta Woman's club meeting Monday, when he spoke to an audience of several hundred women.

Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, president, presided.

Dr. Eddy told in a vivid way of ghastly conditions now existing in Europe and other countries as a result of war and famine. He brought to the attention of his hearers what women of all nations had been known to accomplish, by referring to such characters as Florence Nightingale and her marvelous development in the system of nursing and in what it had resulted; of the work of Elizabeth Fry and her change of prison reform; of Frances Willard, who stood for woman's rights and temperance, and other such noted characters and achievements.

"If women can do all this, they can do more, and it depends more largely upon the influence they exert toward gaining world peace, than upon any other living forces," said Dr. Eddy.

"I saw wonderful work accomplished by great women of India who gathered about them hundreds of little girls and protected them from the evils of the world. I saw Dr. Mary Stone, in China, who went out to do her noble work among those people, and I saw the wonderful hospital she had erected, and I have no doubt that women can overcome any evil, and the evil of today is war."

Better To Face Truth.

Dr. Eddy stressed the fact that it was better to face the truth today than to face the great horrors of war, which he said was the result of the fifty-four nations having been saved by a world court and compared the situation of this country, which struggled for a time for existence, and brought to mind the wonders of the growth of our nation, which began with these few colonies. His message: "Let America speedily enter the world court and then enter and play its part in the world's peace."

Dr. Eddy closed his forceful lecture with these words: "Why shouldn't we join with the fifty-four nations in trying to preserve peace? Let us say what labor has already said: 'No more war.'"

Present From Mrs. Sharp.

One of the most attractive features of the afternoon, was the presentation of a magnificent solid silver punch bowl, by Mrs. Norman Sharp, first vice president of the Atlanta Woman's club, to the club as a token of her love and devotion.

Mrs. Charles La Fontaine is training a group for the Oriental ballet, one of the most striking features of the production, and will take a prominent part in it. Scenery and the art cover on the program are under the direction of Mrs. E. W. More, chairman of art for the festival.

Mrs. Legare Davis has the important task of costume design for the production. The Holy Family group will be arranged by Mrs. H. M. Nichols, and Mrs. Howard McCutcheon will be in charge of the spectacular scene from the court of King Herod. Another striking sequence will be the group of women in the Adoration scene, this group to be supervised by Mrs. John M. Cooper. Col. William Lawson Peel has assumed the responsibility of a group of "People in Israel."

At the close of the afternoon, Mrs. Richardson made a beautiful Christmas wish for the club members, saying she hoped each one might be so busy making someone else happy that every thought and wish might be a blessing from God, bringing sunshine and joy to all.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted by the club:

"Whereas, the Community Chest was recently created with the object in view of supplying adequate funds to take care of all our needy people, and whereas, we still have beggars on our streets appealing to our sympathies, and whereas, such a situation is a disgrace to our community, we, the Atlanta Woman's club, do hereby pledge our support to the Community Chest."

THE BRIGHT SHAWL

By Joseph Hergesheimer.

NEXT WEEK: "Paradise Garden" by George Gibbs.

"Positively," the officer said, "you are like one of the heroes who held Mexico on the point of his sword or who swept the coast of Peru of its gold. And you are idle, for you see no one who can hold the mat with you."

"In reality," Charles replied, "I fence very awkwardly. But you have often seen me; I have any need to tell you that?"

"That can never be established without experience," the Spaniard asserted. "I should have to feel your wrist against mine. If you will be patient, if you will, for me, I'll risk a public humiliation."

Charles Abbott said evenly: "I'd be very glad to fence with you, of course."

When De Vaca, flawlessly appointed, returned, Charles rose steadily, and strapped on his mask, tightened the leather of the plastron. A murmur or subdued amusement followed their walking out together on to an unoccupied strip—De Vaca was a celebrated swordsman.

The fells struck together, there was a conventional pass and parry, and from that moment Charles Abbott lost control of his steel. At a touch from De Vaca, scarcely perceptible, his foil rose or fell, as upon one side or the other; a lunge would end in the button describing a whole arc, and pointing either to the matting or the ceiling.

The laughter from the chairs grew louder, more unguarded. De Vaca began to make points, touches, wherewith he chose—a remarkably timed twist he tore the cloth from Charles' wadding; he indicated, as though he were a teacher, with a pointer, anatomical facts and regions; De Vaca seemed to be calling Charles' attention, by sharp premonitory taps, to what he might have been saying. Then Charles grasped what he was certain, was the purpose of the attack. It was the result of a cold effort, a set determination to destroy what courage he had.

"If I collapse," Charles told himself, "it will be for eternity."
Any sense of time was disintegrated in a physical agony which required all his waning being to combat. But even when the assault upon his mind. If he crumbled... he thought of himself as a dust, his brain a dry powder in his skull. Soon, Charles felt, he would fall into unreckoned depths of corrupt shadows, among the obscene figures of the hidden past.

The sweat streaming into his mouth turned thick and salt—blood, from his nose, there was a tumult in his head; his fencing now was the mere waving of a reed.

Sharply, incomprehensibly, it was over. Drooping forward upon his knees, dropping his foil from paralyzed fingers, he saw De Vaca, with his mask on his arm, frowning.

"Now," Charles Abbott thought luxuriously, "I can faint and be damned to them."
The cloud of darkness which flayed over him was empty of the violence of fear; rather, like the beneficence of night, it was an utterly peaceful remission of the flesh.

CHAPTER XVI.

Charles' Ambition.

Charles' physical exhaustion, the weariness of his mind, continued in a settled lassitude through the following day. He was to see Andres Escobar, give him what information he had from La Clavel, the next morning at the baths of the Campos Eliseos; and meanwhile he secretly stirred from the San Felipe. He had changed appreciably during his stay in Havana; even his physiognomy was different—how, he couldn't say, but he was aware that his expression had, well, hardened. The cure which had been the principally hoped-for result of Cuba was complete. In spite of his collapse in the fencing school, he was more compact, stronger, than ever before. It occurred to him that, now, he might be described as a Man.

The schooling of the past week, together with the stiffening of his spirit, had bred a new practicality in him, superior, he felt, to any sheer heroics.
In this, he recognized, his mind was different from the Escobars, from the blind fervor of the many Cuban patriots he knew. What he was possible, men of the widest possible activities talked to him of their plans. In short, Charles Abbott felt that he might become a power; and this he coolly set himself to bring about. His heritage was that of success.

La Clavel noticed a marked difference in him; he proclaimed that it was no more than an increase in his natural propensity for high-mindedness. It fastened her well for you, to be with him, made her dizzy to gaze up at his altitude of mind.

He was seated in her room, the hairdresser was waiting in the airport to produce an effect she was describing to him with phrases as stinging as the whip of follis, while Charles watched her with a degree of annoyance. Her humors, where he was concerned, were unpredictable; and lately she had found a special delight in attacks on his dignity. She said and did things—an air of innocence hiding her malice—indecently ribald that shook his firmest efforts to appear to be unconcerned.

At last, in a volatile rage, she dismissed the servant with his tougs and pomatum and crimping leads, and swore that she was going to the Argentine by the first boat that offered passage.

"I am sick of Cuba, and I've forgotten that I am an artist, and that is bad. You are wrapped up in this liberty, and that is very well for you, an ordinary person. But me, I am not an ordinary person; I am La Clavel. I am more valuable to the world than pumpkins or republics. She seized the castanets lying on her dressing table—in answer to her irritable rhythmic clinking she projected, for an instant, a vision of all desire.

There was an indefinite stir at the door, a short knock, and he moved to the window as Santacilla entered unceremoniously.

The Spaniard, a model of politeness, of consideration, listened to La Clavel's determination to go to South America. It was an excellent plan, he agreed; that would welcome her rapturously in Buenos Ayres.

"But what will our young American do?" he demanded. "How will he live without his delight? But perhaps he is going to the Argentine with you. He will have a busy time, and a handful of challenges there, where beauty is appreciated to the full."

Charles said, with an appearance of silliness, that he hadn't been invited to go farther south, and Santacilla replied that, as a matter of fact, it might be necessary for him to remain, perhaps forever, in Havana. He spoke cheerfully, but a vague quality of his bearing, his voice, was disturbing, mocking. His words had the air of an underlying meaning different from their sound.

An uneasiness, as well, was communicated to La Clavel; she watched Santacilla with an indirect puzzled gaze.

Charles, too, had a sense of impending danger, a premonition of clashing sound, of discord.

Whatever, developed, he must meet it, subdue and conquer it. Ceaza Y. Santacilla, he saw, was not visibly armed; but, probably he would carry a small pistol. The one his father had given him in Charles' pocket.

The difficulty was that, in the event of a disturbance, no matter what the outcome here might happen to be, the dancer and he would bear the weight of the Spanish furr. And it was no part of his intention to be cut in half by bullets behind a fortress wall.

He could only delay, discover as soon as possible what was behind Santacilla's deceiving patience and good act without hesitation and with no chance of failure. La Clavel said, "I know you so well, Ceaza, what is it; what is it you are saying and saying without speaking of it? It is one as though you were threatening me and that, you best should realize, is useless."

His flickering eyes rested first on her and then upon Charles Abbott. "You will never get to South America now," he asserted: "For you are a conspirator against your king. Since you have shown such a love of Cuban soil you are to become a part of it—forever."

CHAPTER XVII.

"It Is Not in My Star."

Charles Abbott, now standing by the door, shot in the bolt which secured it, and, by a fortunate chance, broke off the handle. Santacilla, undisturbed, remained seated, sniling while his fingers played with the plaited loop of his cane. "This infatuation," he indicated them with a wave, "while it convinced Havana, never entirely satisfied me. I have been watching you, Ceaza, for days. You were very cunning, but, in the end, you failed; you were neither skilful nor patient enough. Let me tell you, last, all that you heard were fairy tales."

La Clavel faced him calmly, but Charles saw she was pale. He was reviving a hundred impractical schemes; they had only one end, the death of Santacilla. Let me tell you, last, all that you heard were fairy tales."

"I am not a traitor in the way you mean," she declared. "What you call never allowed you to note was that, in Spain and here, I have always detested you; and what I did was the result of that. I struck you not at our country, for the court and church and army are no longer our strength—if we still have any except the knife and cord—but our weakness."

"Fools," he asserted, unmoved. "And now you are the fool," she added.

"No, you are wrong; I am only enjoying myself before the show is over. I wanted to see you, and you, young devotee, twist and turn before the face of death. I have killed, and seen executed, a number of people, men and women; but I was kind curious—a great dancer and a rich young American. That is an unusual day."

It was best, Charles Abbott decided, to bring about as much as possible with no more delay; the prime necessary act accomplished, he could face the problems of the immediate future steadily. He quietly produced his pistol and leveled it.

The dry click alone followed the pulling of the trigger made the officer aware of the attempt upon his life.

"Ed hez got hisself wot you might call a doggone good waitin' room."

Ed Prindle has knocked the floor out of an old doghouse, put it on top of a hollow stump and made about the best waiting room on the line.

Charles stared dully at the useless weapon, with its mounting of mother-of-pearl, which he still held.

"The cartridges have been too long in their barrels," Santacilla explained: "They have dried and shifted. You should have greased them every week."

La Clavel stood, lost in thought, like a woman in a dream. Her hair, over which she had spent such time and curses was an elaborate silhouette against the light.

"Ceaza, Ceaza," she implored, going to him. "You must let me go and dance in Buenos Ayres; they have never seen me there; it is necessary to my career."

He was appalled by the fury of the woman silently trying to choke her enemy; her other hand, grasping the thin glimmer of the knife always convenient in her stocking, the officer held away from them.

Her years of dancing, her early, hardening life in the mountains, had given her a strength and litheous how tearing at the weight, the masculinity, of Santacilla. He was trying, in vain, to break her wrist, to close his fingers into her throat; and, bending, the fragility of her clothes, ripped across her sinuous back.

Shifting and evading the thrust of his power, she was sending the blood in purple waves over his neck and thick cheeks. Neither of them cried out, spoke; there was only the sound of hoarse breathing, inarticulate expressions of unendurable strain.

La Clavel's face was as blanched as the officer's was dark, her eyes wide open and set, as though she were in a galvanic trance.

Again and again Santacilla tried to tear away her arms, to release him from the constriction at his neck.

His fingers dug red furrows through her flesh, they tormented and outraged her. A palm closed upon her countenance, and blood ran from under it.

But there was no weakening of her force, no slackening in her superb body. She seemed curiously impersonal; robbed of all traits of women; she was like a symbol, the figure from a shield, from an emblem, dragging him to death.

Then, suddenly, in an inadequate muffled voice burdened with a shuddering echo of fear, he cried for her to release him. It was so unexpected, he became so inexplicably limp, that La Clavel backed away instinctively.

Charles started forward, the chair lifted high; but he was stopped by the expression, the color, of Ceaza Santacilla's face. The officer turned, with his hands at his throat, toward the window.

"The air," he whispered: "hot as wine." He pitched abruptly face forward upon the floor. He bore the laxness, the emptiness, of death. He had spoken truly that it wasn't in his star to be killed by a man.

"Well," said Charles, "the revolution is through with him."

He glanced suddenly at La Clavel. She was drooping, dishevelled and hideous; her hair lay on her bare shoulders in coarse strands; her face was swollen with bruises. Now, he realized, she would never see the Argentine! she would never again hear the shouted odes that greeted, rewarded, the brilliancy of her jota.

His thoughts shifted to Cuba and himself—if it were a crime of passion that had been committed in her room, the cause, there, would be freed from suspicion.

Charles had, as customary, come directly, unostentatiously, to her room, and he was certain that he had not been observed. A duty, hard in the extreme, was before him.

"Way did you bring about Santacilla's death?" he demanded. She gazed at him dully, uncomprehendingly. "It was because he was jealous," he proceeded: "You must hold to that." She nodded, dazed. "When they come into the room and find him you must show what he did to you. And, after all, you didn't kill him. Perhaps that will save you." His voice was without conviction. "They won't believe you, and they may try measures to get at the truth; but you will be faithful. You will keep your secret, and—I must go. I shall ask for you downstairs, make them send up a servant, and shout as loudly as any."

She held up her battered countenance dumbly and, with a feeling of transcendent reverence, he kissed her cut lips.
